Legislative findings. The legislature finds Section 1. that the increasing complexity of income tax laws, particularly those affecting income earned in one state by a taxpayer residing in another state, has contributed to unfair and inequitable situations. Although a New York taxpayer may offset taxes paid to another state against his or her state income tax liability, delays in assessment and notification by the other state may cause filing of an amended return to be barred by the statute limitations. As a result, the New York taxpayer is forced to pay the same tax obligation twice, once to New York and again to the other state. In an effort to provide an equitable remedy for affected taxpayers, the legislature determines to treat changes to a taxpayer's obligations to another state in the same fashion as changes made to a taxpayer's federal obligations.

- S 2. Section 659 of the tax law, as amended by chapter 577 of the laws of 1997, is amended to read as follows:
