AN ACT to amend the education law, in relation to prohibiting mental health professionals from engaging in sexual orientation change efforts with a patient under the age of eighteen years and expanding the definition of professional misconduct with respect to mental health professionals

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, REPRESENTED IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY, DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

1 Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The Legislature hereby 2 finds and declares all of the following:
3 a. Being lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender is not a disease,
4 disorder, illness, deficiency, or shortcoming. The major professional 5 associations of mental health practitioners and researchers in the 6 United States have recognized this fact for nearly 40 years.
7 b. The American Psychological Association convened a Task Force on 8 Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation. The task force 9 conducted a systematic review of peer-reviewed journal literature on 10 sexual orientation change efforts, and issued a report in 2009. The task 11 force concluded that sexual orientation change efforts can pose critical 12 health risks to lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender people, including 13 confusion, depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social 14 withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-15 blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, increased self-

1 hatred, hostility and blame toward parents, feelings of anger and 2 betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in 3 sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual 4 behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of 5 faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources.

6 c. The American Psychological Association issued a resolution on 7 Appropriate Affirmative Responses to Sexual Orientation Distress and 8 Change Efforts in 2009, which states: The American Psychological Associ-9 ation advises parents, guardians, young people, and their families to 10 avoid sexual orientation change efforts that portray homosexuality as a 11 mental illness or developmental disorder and to seek psychotherapy, 12 social supports, and educational services that provide accurate informa-
13 tion on sexual orientation and sexuality, increase family and school 14 support, and reduce rejection of sexual minority youth.

15 d. The American Psychiatric Association published a position statement 16 in March of 2000 in which it stated: "Psychotherapeutic modalities to 17 convert or 'repair' homosexuality are based on developmental theories
18 whose scientific validity is questionable. Furthermore, anecdotal 19 reports of 'cures' are counterbalanced by anecdotal claims of psycholog-20 ical harm. In the last four decades, 'reparative' therapists have not 21 produced any rigorous scientific research to substantiate their claims 22 of cure. Until there is such research available, the American Psychiat-23 ric Association recommends that ethical practitioners refrain from 24 attempts to change individuals' sexual orientation, keeping in mind the 25 medical dictum to first, do no harm. The potential risks of reparative 26 therapy are great, including depression, anxiety and self-destructive 27 behavior, since therapist alignment with societal prejudices against 28 homosexuality may reinforce self-hatred already experienced by the 29 patient. Many patients who have undergone reparative therapy relate that 30 they were inaccurately told that homosexuals are lonely, unhappy indi-
31 viduals who never achieve acceptance or satisfaction. The possibility 32 that the person might achieve happiness and satisfying interpersonal 33 relationships as a gay man or lesbian is not presented, nor are alterna-34 tive approaches to dealing with the effects of societal stigmatization 35 discussed. Therefore, the American Psychiatric Association opposes any 36 psychiatric treatment such as reparative or conversion therapy which is 37 based upon the assumption that homosexuality per se is a mental disorder
38 or based upon the a priori assumption that a patient should change 39 his/her sexual orientation."

40 e. The American School Counselor Association's position statement on 41 professional school counselors and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgen-42 dered, and questioning (LGBTQ) youth states: It is not the role of the 43 professional school counselor to attempt to change a student's sexual 44 orientation/gender identity but instead to provide support to LGBTQ 45 students to promote student achievement and personal well-being. Recog-46 nizing that sexual orientation is not an illness and does not require 47 treatment, professional school counselors may provide individual student 48 planning or responsive services to LGBTQ students to promote self-accept-49 tance, deal with social acceptance, understand issues related to coming 50 out, including issues that families may face when a student goes through 51 this process and identify appropriate community resources.

52 f. The American Academy of Pediatrics in 1993 published an article in 53 its journal, Pediatrics, stating: Therapy directed at specifically 54 changing sexual orientation is contraindicated, since it can provoke 55 guilt and anxiety while having little or no potential for achieving 56 changes in orientation.

1 g. The American Medical Association Council on Scientific Affairs
2 prepared a report in 1994 in which it stated: Aversion therapy (a behav-
3 ioral or medical intervention which pairs unwanted behavior , in this 4 case, homosexual behavior, with unpleasant sensations or aversive conse-
5 quences) is no longer recommended for gay men and lesbians. Through 6 psychotherapy, gay men and lesbians can become comfortable with their 7 sexual orientation and understand the societal response to it.

8 h. The National Association of Social Workers prepared a 1997 policy 9 statement in which it stated: Social stigmatization of lesbian, gay and 10 bisexual people is widespread and is a primary motivating factor in 11 leading some people to seek sexual orientation changes. Sexual orien-12 tation conversion therapies assume that homosexual orientation is both 13 pathological and freely chosen. No data demonstrates that reparative or 14 conversion therapies are effective, and, in fact, they may be harmful.

15 i. The American Counseling Association Governing Council issued a 16 position statement in April of 1999, and in it the council states: We 17 oppose 'the promotion of 'reparative therapy' as a 'cure' for individ-18 uals who are homosexual.

19 j. The American Psychoanalytic Association issued a position statement 20 in June 2012 on attempts to change sexual orientation, gender, identity, 21 or gender expression, and in it the association states: As with any 22 societal prejudice, bias against individuals based on actual or 23 perceived sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression nega-24 tively affects mental health, contributing to an enduring sense of stig-25 ma and pervasive self-criticism through the internalization of such 26 prejudice. Psychoanalytic technique does not encompass purposeful 27 attempts to 'convert,' 'repair,' change or shift an individual's sexual 28 orientation, gender identity or gender expression. Such directed 29 efforts are against fundamental principles of psychoanalytic treatment 30 and often result in substantial psychological pain by reinforcing damag-
31 ing internalized attitudes.

32 k. The American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry in 2012
33 published an article in its journal, Journal of the American Academy of 34 Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, stating: Clinicians should be aware 35 that there is no evidence that sexual orientation can be altered through 36 therapy, and that attempts to do so may be harmful. There is no empir-37 ical evidence adult homosexuality can be prevented if gender nonconform-
38 ing children are influenced to be more gender conforming. Indeed, there 39 is not medically valid basis for attempting to prevent homosexuality, 40 which is not an illness. On the contrary, such efforts may encourage 41 family rejection and undermine self-esteem, connectedness and caring, 42 important protective factors against suicidal ideation and attempts.
43 Given that there is no evidence that efforts to alter sexual orientation 44 are effect, beneficial or necessary, and the possibility that they carry 45 the risk of significant harm, such interventions are contraindicated.

46 l. The Pan American Health Organization, a regional office of the 47 World Health Organization, issued a statement in May of 2012 and in it 48 the organization states: These supposed conversion therapies constitute 49 a violation of the ethical principles of health care and violate human 50 rights that are protected by international regional agreements. The 51 organization also noted that reparative therapies lack medical justi-52 fication and represent a serious threat to the health and well-being of 53 affected people.

54 m. Minors who experience family rejection based on their sexual orien-
55 tation face especially serious health risks. In one study, lesbian, gay, 56 and bisexual young adults who reported higher levels of family rejection

1 during adolescence were 8.4 times more likely to report having attempted 2 suicide, 5.9 times more likely to report high levels of depression, 3.4 3 times more likely to use illegal drugs, and 3.4 times more likely to 4 report having engaged in unprotected sexual intercourse compared with 5 peers from families that reported no or low levels of family rejection.
6 This is documented by Caitlin Ryan et al. in their article entitled 7 Family Rejection as a Predictor of Negative Health Outcomes in White and 8 Latino Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Young Adults (2009) 123 Pediatrics 9 346.

10 n. New York has a compelling interest in protecting the physical and 11 psychological well-being of minors, including lesbian, gay, bisexual, 12 and transgender youth, and in protecting its minors against exposure to 13 serious harms caused by sexual orientation change efforts.

14 S 2. The education law is amended by adding a new section 6509-d to 15 read as follows:
