The legislature also finds that developers in Suffolk county have begun selling factory manufactured homes in so-called "retirement communities" in which a large parcel of land is subdivided into many smaller plots. In these communities, the home purchaser buys and owns only the home, and rents the plot on which the home is installed from the developer. The developer retains ownership and control of the roads, sidewalks, and common areas in the community.

This legislature further finds that the nature of this type of enterprise, that is, the purchaser buying only the home and the developer retaining ownership of the land on which the home is installed, tends to lend itself to abuse and possibly illegal acts to the prejudice and detriment of the purchaser.

This legislature determines that adults of retirement age are a disadvantaged group, and as such, require special protection.

Therefore, the purpose of this act is to extend to the owners or occupants of homes in planned retirement communities at the minimum, (a) the right to sell their homes including the incidental right to use any and all methods common to sales of residential property, and (b) a long term lease for no less than ninety-nine years with the sole option to cancel
