The state first adopted its Minority and Women-Owned Business Enterprise Program in 1988 to address the significant underrepresentation of minority and women-owned businesses in state contracts, despite relatively large populations of minorities and women throughout the state. The program, chaptered within article 15-A of the executive law, supported the state's commitment to promote equal opportunity in employment for all persons, without discrimination on account of race, creed, color, national origin, sex, age, disability or marital status, to promote equality of economic opportunity for minority group members and women, business enterprises owned by them, and to eradicate through effective programs the barriers that have unreasonably impaired access by minority and women-owned business enterprises to state contracting opportunities.

In 2006, a disparity study was commissioned by the empire state development corporation, pursuant to executive law section 312-a, to evaluate whether minority and women-owned businesses in the state contracting marketplace had full and fair opportunities to compete for prime contracts and associated subcontracts. Published on April 29, 2010, "the State of Minority and Women-Owned Business Enterprise: Evidence From New ("the 2010 disparity study"), found strong evidence of large, adverse, and statistically significant disparities between minority and women participation in business enterprise activity in the state's relevant market area and the actual current availability of those businesses. The study further concluded that said disparities could not be explained solely, or even mostly, by differences between minority and women-owned businesses and non-minority and women-owned business populations in factors untainted by discrimination, and that the differences therefore gave rise to a strong inference of the presence of discrimination. The findings of the study are hereby adopted by the legislature.

The legislature further finds that the Assembly conducted hearings on the efficiency and effectiveness of services to minority and women-owned businesses and on the effectiveness of article 15-A of the executive law in Utica, New York on February 23, 2005, in New York City on March 3, 2005, and in Syracuse, New York on October 25, 2005; it conducted a hearing on the efforts by public authorities to attract and retain women and minority-owned businesses in securing contracts for construction, goods, and services on June 11, 2002 in Albany, New York, and a hearing on access to surety bonding on state contracts for small, minority and women-owned businesses on April 14, 2005 in New York City. The Senate conducted hearings on the efficiency and effectiveness of services to minority and women-owned business and on the effectiveness of article 15-A of the executive law at the Legislative Office Building hearing rooms in Albany, New York on February 12, 2009, on Minority and Women-Owned Business Enterprise participation opportunities in public finance/asset management, and on March 3, 2010 on the reform of article 15-A of the executive law.

At these hearings, testimony was received that supplemented and was consistent with the anecdotal evidence set forth in the 2010 disparity study that women and minority-owned businesses participate in state procurements at significantly lower percentages than their numbers and expertise would indicate would be expected if no discrimination had existed and provided anecdotal evidence of continuing patterns of discrimination.

The legislature further finds that in order to redress the discrimination documented by the study it is necessary to implement a program that identifies businesses owned by minorities and by women and that actively promotes the participation of such businesses in the state procurement process. The legislature further finds that it is in the best interests of the economic development of the state to enact the 2010 Business Diversification Act to redress discrimination against minority and women-owned business enterprises in the state marketplace.
