from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually imposed. For purposes of determining the duration of an order of protection entered pursuant to this subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a conviction that has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. In addition to any other conditions, such an order may require the defendant:

S 2. The opening paragraph of subdivision 5 of section 530.12 of the criminal procedure law, as amended by chapter 384 of the laws of 2001, is amended to read as follows:

Upon SENTENCING ON A conviction [of] FOR any crime or violation between spouses, BETWEEN A parent and child, or between members of same family or household AS DEFINED IN SUBDIVISION ONE OF SECTION 530.11 THIS ARTICLE, the court may in addition to any other disposition, including a conditional discharge or youthful offender adjudication, enter an order of protection. Where a temporary order of protection was issued, the court shall state on the record the reasons for issuing or not issuing an order of protection. The duration of such an order shall be fixed by the court and, in the case of a felony conviction, shall not exceed the greater of: (i) five years from the date of such [conviction] SENTENCING, or (ii) three years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment actually imposed; or in the case of a conviction for a class A misdemeanor, shall not exceed three years from the date of such [conviction] SENTENCING; or the case of a conviction for any other offense, shall not exceed one year from the date of [conviction] SENTENCING. For purposes of determining the duration of an order of protection entered pursuant to this subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a conviction that has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. In addition to any other conditions, such an order may require the defendant:

S 3. The opening paragraph of subdivision 4 of section 530.13 of the criminal procedure law, as amended by chapter 476 of the laws of 2009, is amended to read as follows:

Upon SENTENCING ON A conviction [of] FOR any offense, where the court has not issued an order of protection pursuant to section 530.12 of this the court may, in addition to any other disposition, including a conditional discharge or youthful offender adjudication, enter an order of protection. Where a temporary order of protection was issued, the court shall state on the record the reasons for issuing or not issuing an order of protection. The duration of such an order shall be fixed by the court and; (A) in the case of a felony conviction, (i) eight years from the date of such exceed the greater of: [conviction] SENTENCING, or (ii) eight years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of an indeterminate or the term of a determinate sentence of imprisonment actually imposed; or (B) in the case of a conviction for a class A misdemeanor, shall not exceed the greater of: five years from the date of such [conviction] SENTENCING, or (ii) five years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of definite or intermittent term actually imposed; or (C) in the case of a conviction for any other offense, shall not exceed the greater years from the date of [conviction] SENTENCING, or (ii) two years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually imposed. For purposes of determining the duration of an order of protection entered pursuant to this subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a conviction that has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. In addition to any other conditions such an order may require that the defendant:
