AN ACT to amend the penal law and the criminal procedure law, in relation to mandatory imprisonment and plea restrictions for offenses victimizing the elderly and physically disabled

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, REPRESENTED IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY, DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

Section 1. It is hereby found and declared that elderly and physically disabled people continue to be singled out as victims of crime. It is also found that the physical harm and emotional trauma suffered by elderly and physically disabled crime victims has a devastating effect on the lives of those victims.

19 20 The elderly or physically disabled victim has a decreased physical capability to resist an attacker and thus becomes an inviting target of crime. Moreover, the aftereffects of crime on the elderly and the physically handicapped affect them more deeply than any statistics would indicate. The emotional trauma and possible serious physical damage resulting from a face to face crime may cause a permanent downgrading in the elderly or physically disabled victim's lifestyle. Such victims often impose "house-arrest" on themselves, afraid to shop, to visit friends, to go to the doctor, to live, unless behind locked doors. Even those elderly or physically disabled who are not direct victims of crime suffer indirectly, because they, having learned of the terrible tragedy suffered by other elderly and physically disabled and fearful for their own individual safety, barricade themselves within their homes. The older or physically disabled crime victim is thus twice victimized--by the crime and by its aftermath.

21 Criminologists, sociologists, psychologists, and the police all recog-22 nize and acknowledge these facts, but the law does not. It has been ineffective in deterring crimes against the elderly and the physically disabled, particularly those involving violence or the threat of violence. Similarly, special projects on crime prevention and improved techniques of communications for the elderly to the police do not halt or reduce such crime. For these reasons, offenses committed against the elderly or the physically disabled must be treated as unique, and legislation must be enacted to provide a meaningful deterrent for those offenders who now victimize the elderly and the physically disabled.
