2015-2016 Regular Sessions

IN SENATE

January 14, 2015

Introduced by Sens. PARKER, SAMPSON -- read twice and ordered printed, and when printed to be committed to the Committee on Finance

AN ACT to establish a temporary state commission, within the office for the prevention of domestic violence, to study intimate partner violence; and providing for the repeal of such provisions upon expiration thereof

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK, REPRESENTED IN SENATE AND ASSEMBLY, DO ENACT AS FOLLOWS:

1 Section 1. Legislative findings and intent. The legislature hereby 2 finds that intimate partner violence against women is a major public 3 health concern that needs to be addressed with all practical and prag-4 matic tools at its disposal and that those tools should be effectively 5 and responsibly utilized by communities all across the state.

According to the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA), 1.5 million women are physically and/or sexually abused by an intimate partner each year, and 25% will experience intimate partner violence at some time during their lifetimes. Moreover, 25% of adolescents have experienced physical or sexual dating violence. In another report, the U.S. Department of Justice found out that females are approximately ten times more likely to be killed by an intimate partner than are males.

Similarly, injuries that result from such violence are significantly 13 14 more common among females for both adolescents and adult populations, 15 and approximately 10% of intentional injuries to adolescent girls are reported to be the result of violent male dating. External factors such 16 17 race, age, illiteracy and ethnicity are closely related with the as climbing rates of intimate partner violence. Furthermore, health risks 18 and demographics have been found to be associated with both dating 19 violence variables and health risk outcomes. 20

Research suggests that the incidence of physical dating violence was associated with substance use (heavy smoking, binge drinking, driving after drinking, cocaine use), unhealthy weight control (diet pills use,

1 laxative use), risky sexual behavior (first intercourse before the age 2 of fifteen years, not using a condom at last intercourse, at least three 3 sex partners in the last three months), pregnancy, and suicidality 4 (considered, attempted suicide).

5 study found that many secondary effects are commonly related with A 6 the prevalence of intimate partner violence. For example, both adoles-7 girls and adult women who experienced forcible sex are more likely cent 8 to exhibit eating disorders; also, violent childhood experiences catalyze the vulnerability to become victims of intimate partner violence. 9 10 Likewise, the humiliation of those who experienced intimate partner 11 violence may play a major role in predisposing teens to suicidal ideation and behavior. Moreover, based on recent data from abused adults, adolescents who experience dating violence may be less likely than 12 13 14 others to receive treatment for mental health concerns.

15 Adolescents experiencing dating violence are at significantly elevated risks for having greater numbers of sex partners, making them more 16 17 vulnerable to contracting HIV and other sexually transmitted diseases than adolescent girls who are not abused by dating partners. 18 Similarly, 19 abused high school girls are found to be more likely than their non-abused peers to have ever been pregnant. In contrast, younger girls were 20 21 found to be at lower risk for experiences of dating violence, due to 22 reduced opportunity for such experiences.

23 Evidently, the legislature needs to address this issue thoroughly due the disturbing statistics that show an increasing rate of adolescent 24 to 25 dating violence. Bearing in mind that the state's population is composed mainly of minority groups, and that for example, according to JAMA, black female students appear to be more likely than individuals from 26 27 other groups to report sexual violence in the absence 28 of physical 29 violence from dating partners, it is imperative to formulate legislation 30 that would study this issue properly and then make necessary recommendations that would lead to minimizing this problem. 31

32 As noted, it is relevant to make a relationship between dating 33 violence and health risks among, but not limited to, adolescent girls in 34 the state of New York. Health experts agree that perhaps the most pressing need for research involves the development of this violent behavior 35 among perpetrators of abuse against dating partners. Prevention efforts 36 37 in this area should be expanded and support should be provided for 38 development and implementation of prevention programs and services specific to teen dating violence. Equally important, is the finding of 39 40 legislature that medical and mental health professionals should this routinely screen adolescents for dating violence and be aware of appro-41 42 priate referrals.

43 It is the finding of this legislature that a body of experts in this 44 area be convened to report and recommend solutions to intimate partner 45 violence that can be quickly implemented throughout the state.

2. A temporary state commission on intimate partner violence is 46 S 47 hereby established, within the office for the prevention of domestic 48 violence, to examine, evaluate and make recommendations concerning the 49 prevalence, causes, effects, risks and costs to the state of intimate 50 partner violence, including dating violence toward young women. Such commission shall review the impact of the existing conditions on inti-51 mate partner violence, and how to reduce such violence and increase the 52 53 reporting of such violence.
