- AN ACT to amend the domestic relations law and the family court act, in relation to prohibiting the making of decisions concerning guardianship, custody or visitation or adoption petitions solely on the basis of a parent's, guardian's or custodian's blindness; and to amend the social services law, in relation to prohibiting the department of social services from denying, deciding or opposing a petition or request for guardianship, custody or visitation solely because the petitioner is blind and to prohibiting a local social services agency from taking actions solely because a parent, custodian or guardian is blind

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "blind 2 persons right to parent act".

3 § 2. Legislative intent. The legislature finds the following:

a. All blind Americans have the right to found a family, to freely and responsibly decide on the number and spacing of their children, and to retain the custody of their offspring on an equal basis with others.
This right to parent is rooted in the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment; however, blind people are often stripped of these constitutional rights when state statutes, judicial decisions, and child welfare practices are based on the presumption that blindness automatically means parental incompetence.

b. The presumption that blindness automatically means parental incompetence is a misconception. Given the proper tools and education, blind-

1 ness can be reduced to a physical nuisance. Because many sighted people 2 do not understand the techniques that blind people use to accomplish everyday tasks, sighted judges, social workers, and state official 3 4 assume that those tasks cannot be completed by a blind person. Using 5 alternative techniques, blind people are capable of living independent, б productive lives, which include providing safe and loving homes for 7 their children. For example, blind people put small tactile dots over 8 markers on stoves, washing machines, and other flat surfaces so that 9 they can independently operate those devices. Specific to raising chil-10 dren, blind parents may have their young children wear a small bell on 11 their shoes so the child's location can be known to the parents. Blind parents will also pull a stroller behind them rather than push the 12 13 stroller in front of them so their long white cane or guide dog will 14 find obstacles or enter an intersection before the child and stroller.

15 When sighted parents are involved in a guardianship, custody or c. 16 visitation proceeding, their parental capabilities and how those capa-17 bilities affect the best interest of the child are thoroughly evaluated through a careful review of evidence. Too often, however, judges summar-18 19 ily dismiss a blind parent's capabilities under the misconception that 20 blind people are incapable of most anything, despite evidence on record 21 proving otherwise. Blind parents involved in these proceedings must first overcome any bias or low expectations of the judge, and then also 22 provide evidence negating those misconceptions above and beyond the 23 24 normal burden placed on sighted parents.

25 Widespread misconceptions about blindness often trigger a state d. 26 agency to act, unsolicited, against the wishes of a blind parent. One of 27 many countless, devastating reports of discrimination occurred in 2010, 28 when the state of Missouri wrongfully deemed a blind couple unable to care for their 2-day old daughter, who remained in protective custody 29 30 until the family was reunited after a 57-day battle. These parents had 31 done nothing to demonstrate parental incompetence other than happening 32 to have had a child and been blind, and yet the agency solely considered 33 their blindness and decided to take action. In fact, the Missouri case and many others, the parents had voluntarily contacted social service 34 35 officials themselves in order to seek advice and assistance and to 36 ensure that all of their child's needs were being met, but instead found 37 themselves stripped of custody. Thus, hasty actions on the part of state 38 social welfare officials can discourage blind parents from seeking 39 services and assistance for which they and their children are eligible.

40 e. During custody proceedings in cases of divorce, where one parent is 41 blind and the other is sighted, the sighted parent will often try to use the other parent's blindness as a tool to deny the blind parent custo-42 43 dial rights. Because custody proceedings related to a divorce are often 44 hostile, the court should demand that each party demonstrate evidence of 45 the other party's incompetence. However, courts often assume that the 46 sighted party is accurate in portraying the blind parent as incompetent, 47 and make custody and visitation decisions based solely on the fact that 48 one parent is blind. These decisions can range from limiting or denying visitation unless a sighted person is present at all times to simply 49 denying the blind parent all custodial rights. This is not only discri-50 51 minatory; it denies the blind parent a fair chance at custody and opens 52 courts to manipulation.

53 § 3. The domestic relations law is amended by adding a new section 54 75-m to read as follows:

55 § 75-m. Consideration of blindness during guardianship, custody or 56 visitation proceedings. 1. The court may not deny or decide a petition A. 1071
