§ 58-0101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as the "Peconic Bay estuary protection act".

§ 58-0103. Legislative declaration.

The legislature hereby declares it to be in the public interest to protect and manage the Peconic Bay estuary, in the county of Suffolk, by establishing a Peconic Bay estuary reserve. It is further in the public interest to establish a council made up of representatives of state and local governments and stakeholders to implement the comprehensive conservation and management plan created for the Peconic Bay estuary system pursuant to the national estuary program.

§ 58-0105. Legislative findings and intent.

The Peconic Bay system is one of twenty-eight estuaries across the country designated as part of the national estuary program pursuant to the federal clean water act. The purpose of the national estuary program is to develop watershed-based comprehensive management plans for estuaries of national significance threatened by pollution, development, or misuse.

In nineteen hundred ninety-one, the Peconic Bay estuary was nominated as an estuary of national significance under the national estuary program. The Peconic Bay estuary was formally accepted into the national estuary program in nineteen hundred ninety-two. Since nineteen hundred ninety-two, the state of New York, the county of Suffolk, the environmental protection agency together with the local governments, citizens, businesses, industry and environmental groups, and other stakeholders within the Peconic Bay region, collectively known as the Peconic Bay estuary program management conference, have worked together to create a comprehensive conservation and management plan to protect the Peconic Bay estuary.

The economic significance of the Peconic Bay estuary is well established. More than eleven hundred establishments were identified in the Peconic Bay estuary as "estuarine dependent" with gross revenues exceeding four hundred fifty million dollars per year. These stakeholders, establishments and industries are represented by the association of marine industries, the east end marine farmers association, the baymen association of the five east end towns, the Long Island farm bureau and the New York sea food council, among others. The future of this economic base clearly depends on maintaining the quality of the estuary.

Before the completion of the comprehensive conservation and management plan for the Peconic Bay estuary, an action plan was established to provide for early implementation of initiatives to benefit the estuary. Seven million dollars in federal and state funds have been dedicated to fifty-one demonstration and implementation projects, including sewage plant upgrades, agricultural environmental management, storm water mitigation, bay scallop seeding, wetland and eelgrass restoration, and demonstrations of numerous best management practices, including no discharge zones, inventorying of historic depths, water access points, hardened structures, critical natural resource areas and other inventory related items. Further under the State Clean Air/Clean Water Bond Act, a minimum of thirty million dollars has been allocated for the Peconic Bay and South Shore estuaries. Finally, in nineteen hundred ninety-eight, the legislature adopted chapter one hundred fourteen of the laws of nineteen hundred ninety-eight establishing the Peconic Bay community preservation fund which established a two percent real estate transfer tax to fund land preservation efforts in the Peconic Bay region.

The draft comprehensive conservation and management plan has now been completed. It is the purpose of this article to provide for the implementation of recommendations made in the comprehensive conservation and management plan.
