ARTICLE XX

Initiative and Referendum

Section 1. Notwithstanding any other provision of this constitution, the People reserve to themselves the power to propose laws and to propose amendments to the constitution, and to adopt or reject the same, at the polls, independent of the legislature, and also reserve the power, at their own option, to so adopt or reject any act, or section or part of any act, passed by the legislature.

- § 2. As used in this article: a. Initiative is the power of the elec-30 tors to propose amendments to the constitution and to propose statutes; and
- 32 b. Referendum is the power of the electors to approve or reject stat-33 utes or parts of statutes.
  - § 3. Initiative may be used for any measure embracing a single object or purpose, except the following: calling elections; appropriating funds, except for an initiative proposing an appropriation for a single object or purpose; naming any individuals to hold any office; or naming or identifying any private corporation or other private entity to perform any function or to have any power or duty. Such measures may not be submitted to the electors and shall not have the force and effect of law.
  - § 4. An initiative or referendum measure may be proposed by presenting to the state board of elections a petition that sets forth the text of the proposed statute, constitutional amendment or referendum and that has been signed by electors equal in number to at least five percent of the votes cast for all candidates for governor at the last gubernatorial election. Such signatures must include at least five thousand signatures from each of at least three-fifths of the congressional districts of the state.
- 50 § 5. a. Petitions for an initiative or referendum measure shall be in 51 substantially the same form as prescribed by the election law for inde-52 pendent nominating petitions, and shall be circulated and presented in 53 the manner prescribed by such law, except that the petition shall state that the registered voter desires to have the specific initiative or 54 referendum question noted on the petition placed on the ballot instead of a candidate.

- b. Petitions shall be submitted to the state board of elections. A signature made earlier than one year prior to the next general election shall not be counted. Challenges to such petitions shall be resolved by the state board of elections, subject to judicial review as provided for by law. No challenge to an initiative or referendum may be filed more than ten days after submission of petitions to the state board of elections, and any such challenge shall be finally resolved by the state board of elections within ten days of its filing.
- c. Measures proposing or rejecting statutes shall be placed on the ballot by the state board of elections at the next general election held at least ninety days after such measure is submitted. Measures proposing amendments to the constitution shall be placed on the ballot by the state board of elections at the next general election in which there are candidates for the office of member of the senate or assembly held at least ninety days after the measure is submitted to the state board of elections and at the next such general election.
- § 6. a. Prior to the circulation of an initiative or referendum petition for signatures, a copy shall be submitted to the attorney general of the state of New York who shall prepare a title and summary, not to exceed one hundred words, which shall appear on the petition and on the ballot for each initiative or referendum and which shall give no indication of support or opposition to such measure, within twenty days after such measure is submitted to him or her.
- b. A copy of such initiative or referendum petition shall also be submitted to the New York state legislative bill drafting commission or its successor prior to circulation for signatures. Such commission shall render technical comments on the form of the proposed measure, with no indication of support or opposition, to the proponents of such measure within twenty days of submission.
- c. No action or inaction by the attorney general or the failure of the legislative bill drafting commission or its successor to provide comments with respect to an initiative or referendum petition, or to timely do so, shall affect the validity of such initiative or referendum petition or the action of the electors thereon.
- d. Any action or proceeding in which any question arises as to the validity of an initiative or referendum measure, whether an initiative or referendum measure should appear on the ballot or which challenges the title and summary of such measure prepared by the attorney general as failing to accurately describe such measure, shall be heard in the supreme court of the state and preferred over all other civil causes in all courts of the state and shall be heard and determined in preference to all other civil business pending therein. No action or proceeding challenging whether an initiative or referendum measure may appear on the ballot or which challenges any action or inaction by the attorney general respecting the title or summary of such measure may be brought more than fourteen days after action by the attorney general pursuant to subdivision a of this section or, if the attorney general fails to act, then no later than fourteen days after the deadline for such action pursuant to such subdivision a.
  - § 7. Except to the extent required by section eight of this article, a maximum of four discrete initiative measures, or four discrete referendum measures, or any combination of discrete initiative measures or referendum measures not to exceed a total of four may be submitted to the electors at any one general election. If more than four measures

1 qualify, those initiative measures and referenda measures submitted to 2 the state board of elections earliest in time shall be placed on the 3 ballot.

- § 8. Any initiative or referendum not placed on a ballot because of the provisions of section seven of this article shall automatically be placed on the ballot for the next general election, notwithstanding the provisions of section seven of this article.
- § 9. a. To be enacted, an initiative or referendum measure proposing or rejecting a statute must be approved by a majority of the electors of the state voting on the measure state-wide. An initiative or referendum measure that has been approved shall take effect on the first day of January of the year next succeeding its passage unless the measure expressly provides otherwise. If a referendum petition is approved repealing a part of a statute, the remainder of the statute shall not be delayed from going into effect.
  - b. A measure amending the constitution must be approved by a majority of the electors of the state voting on the measure in two successive elections in which there are candidates for state senate or state assembly on the ballot. Such measure shall take effect on the first day of January of the year next succeeding its second approval unless the measure expressly provides otherwise.
- 22 c. If provisions of two or more measures approved at the same election
  23 conflict, those of the measure receiving the highest number of affirma-
  24 tive votes shall prevail.
  - d. A referendum measure rejecting all or part of a statute cannot be repealed, amended or otherwise reconsidered by the legislature for a period of two years. A measure adopted through initiative cannot be repealed, amended or otherwise reconsidered by the legislature for a period of two years. After two years no law to amend, repeal or otherwise reconsider a measure adopted by initiative or referendum shall take effect until it shall, at a general election, have been submitted to the people, and have received a majority of all the votes cast for and against it at such election, nor shall it be so submitted to the people within three months after its passage.
  - e. Any referendum or initiative adopted by the voters may be repealed, amended, or otherwise reconsidered by the people at any time through the process established by this article for initiative or referendum measures.
  - § 10. Initiative and referendum in cities, towns, villages and counties. a. Initiative and referendum powers are reserved for every city, town, village and county in the state as to all local matters that such municipality is or shall be empowered to act pursuant to article IX of this constitution.

  shall be conducted in accordance with the provisions of this article;
  provided, however, that:
- 47 (i) signatures of registered electors of such municipality equal in 48 number to at least thirty thousand or five percent of the votes cast in

  51 propose any measure by initiative and referendum;
  - (ii) the affirmative vote of the majority of electors of the municipality voting on the measure shall be required to enact such measure;
- 54 (iii) petitions shall be submitted to the county board of elections
  55 which shall have the powers conferred and the duties imposed on the 56 state board of elections by this article; and

(iv) the provisions of subdivision b of section six of this article 2 shall not be applicable.

- § 11. This article of the constitution shall be in all respects self-4 executing, except that the manner and method of exercising the power of initiative and referendum may be prescribed pursuant to law, consistent 6 with and limited by the provisions of this article.
- § 7. Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the foregoing amendments be referred to the first regular legislative session convening after the next succeeding general election of members of the assembly, and, in 9 10 conformity with section 1 of article 19 of the constitution, be 11 published for 3 months previous to the time of such election.
