- 1. Notwithstanding any provision of this title to the contrary, a 2 court may only secure attendance at future proceedings of a defendant in 3 4 a criminal proceeding by:
  - (a) releasing the defendant on his or her own recognizance;
  - (b) releasing the defendant subject to conditions established by the court. Such conditions may include, but shall not be limited to:
- 8 (i) requiring the defendant to continue to reside at his or her current residence, and, if he or she is required to move, provide the 9 10 court with his or her new address;
- 11 (ii) requiring the defendant to maintain attendance at an education 12 institution, if he or she is currently attending such institution;
- 13 (iii) requiring the defendant to maintain attendance at his or her 14 place of employment, if employed;
- 15 (iv) requiring the defendant to comply with all orders of protection 16 and temporary orders of protection issued against him or her;
- (v) prohibiting the defendant from traveling, including the surrender of his or her passport, when such prohibition will not affect the 18 defendant's ability to remain employed;
  - (vi) requiring the defendant to comply with a curfew which does not impair such defendant's employment or family responsibilities;
  - (vii) requiring the defendant to stay away from such location or locations as the court shall designate;
  - (viii) requiring the defendant to periodically appear at or to telephonically contract a law enforcement agency to verify his or her presence in the community. In ordering such condition the court shall consider whether the defendant owns a telephone or wireless communications device, and shall ensure that such condition does not unduly place a burden on the defendant's employment, education and family responsibilities; and
- 31 (ix) establishing such conditions as the court shall deem to be neces-32 sary; or
  - (c) committing the defendant to the custody of the sheriff.
  - 2. Every court in the issuance of a securing order shall grant a preference to release on his or her own recognizance when the most severe charge against the defendant is a violation or a misdemeanor.
  - 3. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, the attendance of a defendant shall not be secured by means of bail. Furthermore, every court, in the issuance of a securing order, shall utilize the least restrictive means necessary to secure the defendant's attendance at future proceedings, including the least restrictive conditions when release subject to conditions is permitted.
- 43 4. In every case in which a court issues a securing order either 44 releasing the defendant on his or her own recognizance or releasing the 45 defendant subject to conditions, the court shall cause the defendant to 46 be notified of each subsequent court proceeding at which such defend-47 ant's attendance is required, not more than fourteen days nor less than 48 five days before each such proceeding. Notice to the defendant shall be provided by means of a postcard mailed first class mail, or, if the 49 defendant has provided the court with a telephone number, by a telephone 50 51 call or text message, or has provided an electronic mail address, by an 52 electronic mail message. Each notice provided pursuant to this subdivi-53 sion shall include the time, date and location of the required court 54 appearance, and the potential penalties for the failure of the defendant 55 to appear.
