Introduced by M. of A. D. ROSENTHAL, M. G. MILLER, RAIA, McDONOUGH -- read once and referred to the Committee on Education

AN ACT to amend the education law, in relation to establishing a requirement that instruction in financial education be provided to all pupils in grades nine, ten, eleven or twelve

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The education law is amended by adding a new section 803-b to read as follows:

§ 803-b. Instruction relating to financial education. 1. All pupils in grades nine, ten, eleven or twelve in all public schools in the state shall receive a course or full unit of instruction in financial education delivered by means of a comprehensive financial literacy program.

2. The requirements of this section may be fulfilled through the finance unit of the required high school economics course or the continuation of financial management courses currently being taught in public secondary schools. Additional courses are encouraged to be developed and approved at the local level.

3. The board of education or trustees of the school district is charged with developing and maintaining a financial literacy program for secondary school pupils that shall include, but not be limited to, instruction in the following:

a. recognizing the relationship between financial planning and attaining financial goals;

b. opening and maintaining banking and checking accounts and assessing the quality of banking services;

c. developing a personal budget;

d. analyzing spending, credit purchasing, credit scoring, and managing debt, including retail and credit card debt;
