AN ACT to amend the general obligations law, in relation to liability of owners for dog bites

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as "Frankie Flora's Law".

§ 2. The general obligations law is amended by adding a new section 11-108 to read as follows:

§ 11-108. Liability of owner of dog; injury to individuals and companion animals; exceptions. 1. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the owner of a dog shall be liable for medical costs resulting from an individual or companion animal being bitten, as the result of such owner's negligence in the supervision or control of such owner's dog, by such dog. In order to receive any compensation above and beyond medical costs under the provisions of this section, the victim must prove the dog had dangerous or vicious propensities and the owner had knowledge of such propensities.

2. Nothing in this section shall authorize the bringing of an action pursuant to subdivision one of this section against any person, governmental entity or instrumentality using a police work dog, hearing dog or service dog for its intended purpose if the bite or bites occurred while the dog was defending itself from an annoying, harassing or provoking act, or assisting an employee of the entity or locality in the performance of their official duties.

3. This section shall not be deemed to limit or impair any cause of action authorized pursuant to any other provision of law available to a person or companion animal injured as a result of a dog bite or bites. The provisions of this section shall be in addition to any other statutory remedies.

EXPLANATION--Matter in italics (underscored) is new; matter in brackets [-] is old law to be omitted.
