- AN ACT to acknowledge the fundamental injustice, cruelty, brutality and inhumanity of slavery in the city of New York and the state of New York; to establish the Commission to Study Reparations for African-Americans and to Recommend Remedies, to examine the institution of slavery, subsequently de jure and de facto racial and economic discrimination against African-Americans, and the impact of these forces on living African-Americans and to make recommendations on appropriate remedies; making an appropriation therefor; and providing for the repeal of such provisions upon expiration thereof

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "Reparations commission on slavery in New York state; a study and call for remedies act".

§ 2. Legislative intent. Contrary to what many people believe, slav-5 ery was not just a southern institution. Prior to the American Revo-6 lution, there were more enslaved Africans in New York City than in any 7 other city except Charleston, South Carolina. During this period, slaves 8 accounted for 20% of the population of New York and approximately 40% of 9 colonial New York's households owned slaves. These slaves were an inte-10 gral part of the population which settled and developed what we now know 11 as the state of New York.

1 The first slaves arrived in New Amsterdam, a Dutch settlement established at the southern tip of Manhattan Island, around 1627. These 2 3 enslaved Africans did not belong to individuals, but worked for the 4 Dutch West India Company. The Dutch East India Company had established 5 Fort Amsterdam, a fortification located on the southern tip of the б island of Manhattan, for the purpose of defending the company's fur 7 trade operations in the North River, now known as the Hudson River. In 8 1624, New Amsterdam became a provincial extension of the Dutch Republic 9 and it was designated the capital of the province in 1625.

10 These first enslaved Africans cleared forests, prepared land for agri-11 culture and built an infrastructure of roads, buildings and walls of 12 timber and earthwork, including the wall that gives Wall Street its 13 name. During the following years, more and more enslaved Africans were 14 brought to the New World for the purpose of expanding the settlement.

New Amsterdam came under English control in 1664 and was renamed New Kork in honor of the then Duke of York, in whose name the English had captured it. Three years later, the Dutch gave up their claim to the town and the rest of the colony, in exchange for control of certain trade routes and areas.

20 The change of control of the city did not deter slavery; it was an 21 enormously profitable enterprise and it continued under the English. New York businesses engaged directly in slave trade and also in the 22 production of supplies used in the slave trade. They supplied food, 23 tools and grain to slave plantations in North America and in the West 24 25 Indies. Slave labor built and maintained ships used for trade between 26 North America, Europe, the Caribbean and Africa. Slaves produced goods 27 for sale and worked in private homes. Even newspapers benefited from 28 advertisements of slaves for purchase were a major source of slavery: 29 revenue for the papers during the eighteenth century.

Life was repressive for slaves in New York. The New York City Common Council passed a number of restrictive laws designed at curtailing the rights and freedoms of slaves. Slaves were barred from owning significant property and from bequeathing what they did own to their children. The number of people of African descent who could gather in one place was limited. Restrictions on movement included requiring slaves to carry lanterns after dark and to remain in certain geographic areas.

37 Penalties for breaking these and other laws were severe. Beatings, 38 mutilations and executions were common.

39 Enslaved Africans refused to submit to the slave existence. The condi-40 tions of their lives gave rise to rebellions and the development in the 41 city of a network of the Underground Railroad.

42 Not all citizens of New York agreed with slavery. A powerful aboli-43 tionist movement developed, but the end of slavery in New York did not 44 come easily or quickly. Those who profited from the slave economy fought 45 to maintain the system.

46 In 1799 the New York state legislature passed "An Act for the Gradual 47 Abolition of Slavery". This legislation was a first step in the direction of emancipation, but did not have an immediate effect or affect all 48 49 slaves. Rather, it provided for gradual manumission. All children born to slave women after July 4, 1799 would be freed, but only after their 50 most productive years: age 28 for men and age 25 for women. Slaves 51 52 already in servitude before July 4, 1799 were reclassified as "inden-53 tured servants", but in reality, remained slaves for the duration of their lives. 54

A. 7274--A

1 In 1817, the Legislature enacted a statute that gave freedom to New York slaves who had been born before July 4, 1799. This statute did not 2 become effective until July 4, 1827, however. 3 Despite these laws, there were exceptions under which certain persons 4 5 could still own slaves. Non-residents could enter New York with slaves б for up to nine months, and allowing part-time residents to bring their 7 slaves into the state temporarily. The nine-months exception remained 8 law until its repeal in 1841, when the North was re-defining itself as 9 the "free" region in advance of the civil war. 10 In 1991, a huge African burial ground was discovered in the heart of 11 York's financial district during construction of a skyscraper. The New excavations that followed the termination of the construction project 12 13 yielded the skeletal remains of 419 Africans, many of whom were women 14 and children. 15 The slavery that flourished in the New York state constituted an 16 immoral and inhumane deprivation of Africans' life, liberty, African 17 citizenship rights, and cultural heritage, and denied them the fruits of their own labor. Sufficient inquiry has not been made into the effects 18 of the institution of slavery on living African-Americans and society in 19 20 New York. 21 3. Establishment, purpose and duties of the commission. a. Estab-§ lishment. There is hereby established the Commission to Study Repara-22 tions for African-Americans and to Recommend Remedies (hereinafter 23 referred to as the "commission"). 24 25 b. Duties.
