Introduced by Sen. SANDERS -- read twice and ordered printed, and when printed to be committed to the Committee on Finance

AN ACT to acknowledge the fundamental injustice, cruelty, brutality and inhumanity of slavery in the city of New York and the state of New York; to establish the Commission to Study Reparations for African-Americans and to Recommend Remedies, to examine the institution of slavery, subsequently de jure and de facto racial and economic discrimination against African-Americans, and the impact of these forces on living African-Americans and to make recommendations on appropriate remedies; making an appropriation therefor; and providing for the repeal of such provisions upon expiration thereof

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "Repara-
2 tions commission on slavery in New York state; a study and call for 3 remedies act".

4 § 2. Legislative intent. Contrary to what many people believe, slav-
5 ery was not just a southern institution. Prior to the American Revo-
6 lution, there were more enslaved Africans in New York City than in any 7 other city except Charleston, South Carolina. During this period, slaves
8 accounted for 20% of the population of New York and approximately 40% of 9 colonial New York's households owned slaves. These slaves were an inte-
10 gral part of the population which settled and developed what we now know 11 as the state of New York.

12 The first slaves arrived in New Amsterdam, a Dutch settlement estab-13 lished at the southern tip of Manhattan Island, around 1627. These 14 enslaved Africans did not belong to individuals, but worked for the 15 Dutch West India Company. The Dutch East India Company had established 16 Fort Amsterdam, a fortification located on the southern tip of the 17 island of Manhattan, for the purpose of defending the company's fur 18 trade operations in the North River, now known as the Hudson River. In

1 1624, New Amsterdam became a provincial extension of the Dutch Republic
2 and it was designated the capital of the province in 1625.

3 These first enslaved Africans cleared forests, prepared land for agri-4 culture and built an infrastructure of roads, buildings and walls of 5 timber and earthwork, including the wall that gives Wall Street its 6 name. During the following years, more and more enslaved Africans were 7 brought to the New World for the purpose of expanding the settlement.

8 New Amsterdam came under English control in 1664 and was renamed New 9 York in honor of the then Duke of York, in whose name the English had 10 captured it. Three years later, the Dutch gave up their claim to the 11 town and the rest of the colony, in exchange for control of certain 12 trade routes and areas.

13 The change of control of the city did not deter slavery; it was an 14 enormously profitable enterprise and it continued under the English. New 15 York businesses engaged directly in slave trade and also in the 16 production of supplies used in the slave trade. They supplied food, 17 tools and grain to slave plantations in North America and in the West
18 Indies. Slave labor built and maintained ships used for trade between 19 North America, Europe, the Caribbean and Africa. Slaves produced goods 20 for sale and worked in private homes. Even newspapers benefited from 21 slavery: advertisements of slaves for purchase were a major source of 22 revenue for the papers during the eighteenth century.

23 Life was repressive for slaves in New York. The New York City Common 24 Council passed a number of restrictive laws designed at curtailing the 25 rights and freedoms of slaves. Slaves were barred from owning signif-26 icant property and from bequeathing what they did own to their children.
27 The number of people of African descent who could gather in one place
28 was limited. Restrictions on movement included requiring slaves to carry 29 lanterns after dark and to remain in certain geographic areas.

30 Penalties for breaking these and other laws were severe. Beatings, 31 mutilations and executions were common.

32 Enslaved Africans refused to submit to the slave existence. The condi-33 tions of their lives gave rise to rebellions and the development in the 34 city of a network of the Underground Railroad.

35 Not all citizens of New York agreed with slavery. A powerful aboli-
36 tionist movement developed, but the end of slavery in New York did not 37 come easily or quickly. Those who profited from the slave economy fought 38 to maintain the system.

39 In 1799 the New York state legislature passed "An Act for the Gradual 40 Abolition of Slavery". This legislation was a first step in the direc-
41 tion of emancipation, but did not have an immediate effect or affect all 42 slaves. Rather, it provided for gradual manumission. All children born 43 to slave women after July 4, 1799 would be freed, but only after their 44 most productive years: age 28 for men and age 25 for women. Slaves
45 already in servitude before July 4, 1799 were reclassified as "inden-46 tured servants", but in reality, remained slaves for the duration of 47 their lives.

48 In 1817, the Legislature enacted a statute that gave freedom to New 49 York slaves who had been born before July 4, 1799. This statute did not 50 become effective until July 4, 1827, however.

51 Despite these laws, there were exceptions under which certain persons
52 could still own slaves. Non-residents could enter New York with slaves 53 for up to nine months, and allowing part-time residents to bring their 54 slaves into the state temporarily. The nine-months exception remained 55 law until its repeal in 1841, when the North was re-defining itself as 56 the "free" region in advance of the civil war.

1 In 1991, a huge African burial ground was discovered in the heart of 2 New York's financial district during construction of a skyscraper. The 3 excavations that followed the termination of the construction project
4 yielded the skeletal remains of 419 Africans, many of whom were women 5 and children.

6 The slavery that flourished in the New York state constituted an 7 immoral and inhumane deprivation of Africans' life, liberty, African 8 citizenship rights, and cultural heritage, and denied them the fruits of 9 their own labor. Sufficient inquiry has not been made into the effects 10 of the institution of slavery on living African-Americans and society in 11 New York.

12 § 3. Establishment, purpose and duties of the commission. a. Estab-
13 lishment. There is hereby established the Commission to Study Repara-
14 tions for African-Americans and to Recommend Remedies (hereinafter 15 referred to as the "commission").

18 of New York and in the city of New York. The commission's examination 19 shall include an examination of:

20 (A) the capture and procurement of Africans;

21 (B) the transport of Africans to the United States and the colonies
22 that became the United States for the purpose of enslavement, including 23 their treatment during transport;

24 (C) the sale and acquisition of Africans as chattel property in inter-25 state and intrastate commerce; and

26 (D) the treatment of African slaves in the city of New York and the 27 state of New York, including the deprivation of their freedom, exploita-
28 tion of their labor, and destruction of their culture, language, reli-29 gion, and families.

30 (2) Examine the extent to which the federal and state governments of 31 the United States supported the institution of slavery in constitutional 32 and statutory provisions, including the extent to which such governments 33 prevented, opposed, or restricted efforts of freed African slaves to 34 repatriate to their homeland.

35 (3) Examine federal and state laws that discriminated against freed
36 African slaves and their descendants during the period between the end
37 of the Civil War and the present.

38 (4) Examine other forms of discrimination in the public and private 39 sectors against freed African slaves and their descendants during the 40 period between the end of the Civil War and the present.

52 ogy on behalf of the people of the United States for the perpetration of 53 gross human rights violations on African slaves and their descendants;

54 (B) whether African-Americans still suffer from the lingering effects 55 of the matters described in paragraphs (1), (2), (3), and (4) of this 56 subdivision;

1 (C) whether, in consideration of the commission's findings, any form
2 of compensation to the descendants of African slaves is warranted; and

3 (D) if the commission finds that such compensation is warranted, what 4 should be the amount of compensation, what form of compensation should 5 be awarded, and who should be eligible for such compensation.

6 c. Report to the legislature. The commission shall submit a written 7 report of its findings and recommendations to the temporary president of 8 the senate, the speaker of the assembly, the minority leaders of the
