28 because the consumer exercised any of the consumer's rights under this 29 article or does not provide consent to additional data collection or 30 sharing under section six hundred seventy-six-f of this article includ-31 ing, but not limited to, by:

32 1. denying goods or services to the consumer;

33 2. charging different prices or rates for goods or services, including 34 through the use of discounts or other benefits or imposing penalties;

35 3. providing a different level or quality of goods or services to the 36 consumer; or

37 4. suggesting that the consumer will receive a different price or rate 38 for goods or services or a different level or quality of goods or 39 services.

40 § 676-h. Reasonable security. 1. A business or service provider shall 41 implement and maintain reasonable security procedures and practices, 42 including administrative, physical, and technical safeguards, appropri-43 ate to the nature of the information and the purposes for which the 44 personal information will be used, to protect consumers' personal infor-45 mation from unauthorized use, disclosure, access, destruction, or 46 modification.

47 2. A business or service provider may employ any lawful security meas-48 ures that allow it to comply with the requirements set forth in this 49 section.

50 § 676-i. Business implementation of duties. 1. A business shall:

51 (a) make available to consumers two or more designated methods for 52 submitting requests pursuant to sections six hundred seventy-six-c, six 53 hundred seventy-six-d, and six hundred seventy-six-e of this article, 54 including, at a minimum, a telephone number, and, if the business main-55 tains an internet web site, a web site address;

(b) disclose and deliver the required information to a consumer free of charge within forty-five days of receiving a verifiable consumer request. A business shall take steps to determine whether the request is a verifiable consumer request from the identified consumer. The time period may be extended once by forty-five days when reasonably necessary, provided the consumer is provided notice of the extension within the first forty-five day period. The disclosure shall cover the twelve month period preceding the request. It shall be delivered through the consumer's account with the business, if the consumer maintains an account with the business, or by mail or electronically at the consumer's option, if the consumer does not maintain an account with the business. The business shall not require the consumer to create an account with the business in order to make a verifiable request;

(c) ensure that all individuals responsible for handling consumer inquiries about the business's privacy practices or the business's compliance with this article are informed of all requirements in this article, and how to direct consumers to exercise their rights in this article; and

2. A business shall not be obligated to provide the information required by sections six hundred seventy-six-d and six hundred seventy-six-e of this article to the same consumer more than twice in a twelve month period.

§ 676-j. Exceptions. 1. The obligations imposed on businesses by this article shall not restrict a business's or service provider's ability to:

(a) comply with federal, state, or local laws;

(b) comply with a civil, criminal, or regulatory inquiry, investigation, subpoena, or summons by federal, state, or local authorities;

(c) cooperate with law enforcement agencies concerning conduct or activity that the business, service provider, or third party reasonably and in good faith believes may violate federal, state, or local law;

(d) exercise or defend legal claims;

(e) collect, use, retain, sell, or disclose consumer information that is de-identified or in the aggregate; or

(f) collect or sell a consumer's personal information if every aspect of that commercial conduct takes place wholly outside of the state. For purposes of this section, commercial conduct takes place wholly outside of the state if the business collected information while the consumer was outside of the state, no part of the sale of the consumer's personal information occurred in the state, and no personal information collected while the consumer was in the state is sold. This paragraph shall not permit a business from storing, including on a device, personal information about a consumer when such consumer is in the state and then collecting such personal information when such consumer and stored personal information is outside of the state.

2. Nothing in this article shall require a business to violate an evidentiary privilege under state or federal law or prevent a business from providing the personal information of a consumer who is covered by an evidentiary privilege under state or federal law as part of a privileged communication.

3. This article shall not apply to any of the following:

(a) medical information governed by part 2.6 of the Confidentiality of Medical Information Act or protected health information that is

1 collected by a covered entity or business associate governed by the 2 privacy, security, and breach notification rules issued or established 3 by the United States department of health and human services, 45 C.F.R.

11 parts 160 and 164, or the Health Insurance Portability and Accountabil-12 ity Act of 1996, to the extent the provider or covered entity maintains 13 patient information in the same manner as medical information or 14 protected health information as described in paragraph (a) of this 15 subdivision;

16 (c) information collected as part of a clinical trial subject to the 17 Federal Policy for the Protection of Human Subjects, also known as the 18 "Common Rule", pursuant to good clinical practice guidelines issued by 19 the International Council for Harmonization or pursuant to human subject 20 protection requirements of the United States Food and Drug Adminis-21 tration;

22 (d) the sale of personal information to or from a consumer reporting 23 agency if such information is to be reported in, or used to generate, a 24 consumer report as defined in section three hundred eighty-a of this 25 chapter and use of that information is limited by the federal Fair Cred-

27 (e) personal information collected, processed, sold, or disclosed

31 (f) personal information collected, processed, sold, or disclosed 32 pursuant to the Driver's Privacy Protection Act of 1994, if it is in 33 conflict with such act.

34 4. Notwithstanding a business' obligations to respond to and honor 35 consumer rights requests pursuant to sections six hundred seventy-six-c, 36 six hundred seventy-six-d, and six hundred seventy-six-e of this arti-37 cle:

38 (a) the time period for a business to respond to any verified consumer 39 request may be extended by up to ninety additional days where necessary, 40 taking into account the complexity and number of the requests. A busi-41 ness shall inform the consumer of any such extension within forty-five 42 days of receipt of the request, together with the reasons for the delay;

43 (b) if a business does not take action on the request of the consumer, 44 such business shall inform the consumer, without delay and at the latest 45 within the time period permitted of response by this section, of the 46 reasons for not taking action and any rights the consumer may have to 47 appeal the decision to the business; and 48 (c) if requests from a consumer are manifestly unfounded or excessive, 49 in particular because of their repetitive character, a business may 50 either charge a reasonable fee, taking into account the administrative 51 costs of providing the information or communication or taking the action 52 requested, or refuse to act on the request and notify the consumer of 53 the reason for refusing the request. Such business shall bear the burden 54 of demonstrating that any verified consumer request is manifestly 55 unfounded or excessive.

5. A business that discloses personal information to a service provider shall not be liable under this article if the service provider receiving the personal information uses it in violation of the restrictions set forth in this article, provided that, at the time of disclosing the personal information, such business does not have actual knowledge, or reason to believe, that the service provider intends to commit such a violation. A service provider shall not be liable under this article for the obligations of a business for which it provides services as set forth in this article.

6. This article shall not be construed to: (a) require a business to collect or retain personal information about a consumer longer than it would be retained such information in the ordinary course of business; or

(b) require a business to re-identify or otherwise link information that is not maintained in a manner that would be considered personal information.

7. The rights afforded to consumers and the obligations imposed on a business pursuant to this article shall not adversely affect the rights and freedoms of other consumers.

8. The rights afforded to consumers and the obligations imposed on any business pursuant to this article shall not apply to the extent that they infringe on the noncommercial activities of a publisher, editor, reporter, or other person connected with or employed upon a newspaper, magazine, or other periodical publication, or by a press association or wire service.

§ 676-k. Consumer's private right of action. 1. A consumer who has suffered a violation of this article may bring a lawsuit against the business that committed such violation. A violation of this article shall be deemed to constitute an injury in fact to the consumer who has suffered such violation, and the consumer need not suffer monetary or property loss as a result of such violation in order to bring an action for a violation of this article.

2. A consumer who prevails in such an action shall obtain the following remedies:

(a) damages in an amount not to exceed seven hundred fifty dollars per consumer per violation or actual damages, whichever is greater;

(b) injunctive or declaratory relief, as the court deems proper;

(c) reasonable attorney fees and costs; and

(d) any other relief the court deems proper.

3. In assessing the amount of statutory damages, the court shall consider any one or more of the relevant circumstances presented by any of the parties to the case, including, but not limited to, the nature and seriousness of the misconduct, the number of violations, the persistence of the misconduct, the length of time over which the misconduct occurred, the willfulness of the defendant's misconduct, and the defendant's assets, liabilities, and net worth.

4. A consumer bringing an action pursuant to this section shall notify the attorney general within thirty days of the filing of such action.

§ 676-l. Agency enforcement action. 1. The attorney general, county district attorney, or city corporation counsel having proper jurisdiction may bring a civil action in the name of the people of the state of New York against any person, business, or service provider who violates any provision of this article.

2. Any person, business, or service provider who violates the provisions of this article may be liable for a civil penalty of up to seven thousand five hundred dollars for each intentional violation and

1 of up to two thousand five hundred dollars for each unintentional 2 violation.

3 § 676-m. Construction. This article is intended to further the consti-4 tutional right of privacy and to supplement existing laws relating to 5 consumers' personal information. The provisions of this article are not 6 limited to information collected electronically or over the internet, 7 but shall apply to the collection and sale of all personal information 8 collected by a business from consumers. Wherever possible, law relating 9 to consumers' personal information should be construed to harmonize with 10 the provisions of this article, but in the event of a conflict between 11 other laws and the provisions of this article, the provisions of the law 12 that afford the greatest protection for the right of privacy for consum-13 ers shall control.

14 § 676-n. Attorney general regulations. 1. Within one year of the 15 effective date of this article, the attorney general shall adopt regu-16 lations to further the purposes of this article, including, but not 17 limited to:

18 (a) detailing as needed the types of information that are personal 19 information in technology, data collection practices, obstacles to 20 implementation, and privacy concerns;

21 (b) establishing any exceptions necessary to comply with state or 22 federal law, including, but not limited to, those relating to trade 23 secrets and intellectual property rights;

24 (c) facilitating and governing the submission of a request by a 25 consumer to opt out of the sale of personal information pursuant to 26 section six hundred seventy-six-f of this article;

27 (d) governing business compliance with a consumer's opt-out request;

28 (e) developing a recognizable and uniform opt-out logo or button by 29 all businesses to promote consumer awareness of the opportunity to opt-30 out of the sale of personal information;

31 (f) adjusting the monetary threshold in clause one of subparagraph (i) 32 of paragraph (c) of subdivision one of section six hundred seventy-six 33 of this article in January of every odd-numbered year to reflect any 34 increase in the consumer price index;

35 (g) establishing rules, procedures, and any exceptions necessary to 36 ensure that the notices and information that businesses are required to 37 provide pursuant to this article are provided in a manner that may be 38 easily understood by the average consumer, are accessible to consumers 39 with disabilities, and are available in the language primarily used to 40 interact with the consumer, including establishing rules and guidelines 41 regarding financial incentive offerings; and 42 (h) establishing rules and procedures to further the purposes of 43 sections six hundred seventy-six-d and six hundred seventy-six-e of this 44 article and to facilitate a consumer's or the consumer's authorized 45 agent's ability to obtain information pursuant to section six hundred 46 seventy-six-i of this article, with the goal of minimizing the adminis-47 trative burden on consumers, taking into account available technology, 48 security concerns, and the burden on the business, to govern a business' 49 determination that a request for information received by a consumer is a 50 verifiable consumer request, including treating a request submitted 51 through a password-protected account maintained by the consumer with the 52 business while the consumer is logged into the account as a verifiable 53 consumer request and providing a mechanism for a consumer who does not 54 maintain an account with the business to request information through the 55 business' authentication of the consumer's identity.

1 2. The attorney general may update the foregoing regulations, and 2 adopt additional regulations, as necessary to further the purposes of 3 this article.

4 3. Before adopting any regulations, the attorney general shall solicit 5 broad public participation concerning those regulations.

6 § 676-o. Intermediate transactions. If a series of steps or trans-7 actions were component parts of a single transaction intended from the 8 beginning to be taken with the intention of avoiding the reach of this 9 article, a court shall disregard the intermediate steps or transactions 10 for purposes of effectuating the purposes of this article.

11 § 676-p. Non-waiver. Any provision of a contract or agreement of any 12 kind that purports to waive or limit in any way a consumer's rights 13 under this article, including, but not limited to, any right to a remedy 14 or means of enforcement, shall be deemed contrary to public policy and 15 shall be void and unenforceable. This section shall not prevent a 16 consumer from declining to request information from a business, declin-17 ing to opt out of a business' sale of the consumer's personal informa-18 tion, or authorizing a business to sell the consumer's personal informa-19 tion after previously opting out.

20 § 676-q. Severability. If any provision of this article or the appli-21 cation thereof to any person, business, service provider, or circum-22 stances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other 23 provisions or applications of this article which can be given effect 24 without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the 25 provisions of this article are declared to be severable.

26 § 5. This act shall take effect one year after it shall have become a 27 law.
