Introduced by M. of A. O'DONNELL -- read once and referred to the Committee on Codes

AN ACT to amend the penal law, in relation to affirmative defenses to certain homicide offenses

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. Paragraph (a) of subdivision 1 of section 125.25 of the 2 penal law, as amended by chapter 791 of the laws of 1967, is amended to 3 read as follows:

4 (a) (i) The defendant acted under the influence of extreme emotional 5 disturbance for which there was a reasonable explanation or excuse, the reasonableness of which is to be determined from the viewpoint of a б person in the defendant's situation under the circumstances as the 7 8 defendant believed them to be. Nothing contained in this paragraph 9 shall constitute a defense to a prosecution for, or preclude a 10 conviction of, manslaughter in the first degree or any other crime. (ii) 11 It shall not be a "reasonable explanation or excuse" pursuant to subpar-12 agraph (i) of this paragraph when the defendant's conduct resulted from the discovery, knowledge or disclosure of the victim's sexual orien-13 14 tation, sex, gender, gender identity, gender expression or sex assigned 15 at birth; or

16 § 2. Paragraph (a) of subdivision 3 of section 125.26 of the penal 17 law, as added by chapter 765 of the laws of 2005, such subdivision as 18 renumbered by chapter 482 of the laws of 2009, is amended to read as 19 follows:

(a) (i) The defendant acted under the influence of extreme emotional disturbance for which there was a reasonable explanation or excuse, the reasonableness of which is to be determined from the viewpoint of a person in the defendant's situation under the circumstances as the defendant believed them to be. Nothing contained in this paragraph shall constitute a defense to a prosecution for, or preclude a conviction of,
