temporary order of protection issued under articles four, five, six and eight of this act shall plainly state the date that such order expires.

- (b) Any order of protection or temporary order of protection issued under this act shall be extended for up to two years past the date that such order expires if the court finds an extreme case for such extension and states on the record the reasons for the extension. For purposes of 10 this paragraph, "extreme case" shall mean a threat of harm to the 11 protected party continues; respondent has been found quilty of repeated criminal contempt due to a violation of an order of protection; respondent has continued to express intent to commit harm to, intimidate or threaten the protected party.
- 15 § 2. The opening paragraph of subdivision 5 of section 530.12 of the criminal procedure law, as amended by chapter 240 of the laws of 2015, 16 17 is amended to read as follows:
- Upon sentencing on a conviction for any crime or violation between 18 spouses, between a parent and child, or between members of the same 19 20 family or household as defined in subdivision one of section 530.11 of 21 this article, the court may in addition to any other disposition, 22 including a conditional discharge or youthful offender adjudication, enter an order of protection. Where a temporary order of protection was 24 issued, the court shall state on the record the reasons for issuing or not issuing an order of protection. The duration of such an order shall be fixed by the court and: (A) in the case of a felony conviction, shall 3 not exceed the greater of: (i) eight years from the date of sentencing, except where the sentence is or includes a sentence of probation on a conviction for a felony sexual assault, as provided in subparagraph (iii) of paragraph (a) of subdivision three of section 65.00 of the penal law, in which case, ten years from the date of such 7 sentencing, or (ii) eight years from the date of the expiration of the 9 maximum term of an indeterminate or the term of a determinate sentence 10 of imprisonment actually imposed; or (B) in the case of a conviction for 11 a class A misdemeanor, shall not exceed the greater of: (i) five years from the date of such sentencing, except where the sentence is or 12 includes a sentence of probation on a conviction for a misdemeanor sexu-13 14 assault, as provided in subparagraph (ii) of paragraph (b) of subdi-15 vision three of section 65.00 of the penal law, in which case, six years from the date of such sentencing, or (ii) five years from the date of 16 17 the expiration of the maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually imposed; or (C) in the case of a conviction for any other 18 offense, shall not exceed the greater of: (i) two years from the date of 19 20 sentencing, or (ii) two years from the date of the expiration of the 21 maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually imposed. purposes of determining the duration of an order of protection entered 22 pursuant to this subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a 23 24 conviction that has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. 25 Any order of protection entered pursuant to this section shall be 26 extended for up to two years past the date that such order expires if 27 the court finds an extreme case for such extension and states on the 28 record the reasons for the extension. For purposes of this paragraph, "extreme case" shall mean a threat of harm to the protected party 29 30 continues; defendant has been found quilty of repeated criminal contempt 31 due to a violation of an order of protection; defendant has continued to express intent to commit harm to, intimidate or threaten the protected 32 33 party. In addition to any other conditions, such an order may require 34 the defendant:

3. The opening paragraph of subdivision 5 of section 530.12 of the criminal procedure law, as amended by section 2 of chapter 9 of the laws of 2011, is amended to read as follows:

Upon sentencing on a conviction for any crime or violation between spouses, between a parent and child, or between members of the same family or household as defined in subdivision one of section 530.11 of this article, the court may in addition to any other disposition, including a conditional discharge or youthful offender adjudication, enter an order of protection. Where a temporary order of protection was issued, the court shall state on the record the reasons for issuing or not issuing an order of protection. The duration of such an order shall be fixed by the court and, in the case of a felony conviction, shall not exceed the greater of: (i) five years from the date of such sentencing, (ii) three years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of an indeterminate sentence of imprisonment actually imposed; or in the case of a conviction for a class A misdemeanor, shall not exceed three years from the date of such sentencing; or in the case of a conviction for any other offense, shall not exceed one year from the date of sentencing. For purposes of determining the duration of an order of 54 protection entered pursuant to this subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a conviction that has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. section shall be extended for up to two years past the date that such order expires if the court finds an extreme case for such extension and states on the record the reasons for the extension. For purposes of this paragraph, "extreme case" shall mean a threat of harm to the protected party continues; defendant has been found guilty of repeated criminal contempt due to a violation of an order of protection; defendant has continued to express intent to commit harm to, intimidate or threaten the protected party. In addition to any other conditions, such an order may require the defendant:

13 Upon sentencing on a conviction for any offense, where the court has 14 not issued an order of protection pursuant to section 530.12 of this 15 article, the court may, in addition to any other disposition, including 16 a conditional discharge or youthful offender adjudication, enter an order of protection. Where a temporary order of protection was issued, 17 the court shall state on the record the reasons for issuing or not issu-18 ing an order of protection. The duration of such an order shall be fixed 19 20 by the court and; (A) in the case of a felony conviction, shall not 21 exceed the greater of: (i) eight years from the date of such sentencing, except where the sentence is or includes a sentence of probation on a 22 conviction for a felony sexual assault, as provided in subparagraph 23 (iii) of paragraph (a) of subdivision three of section 65.00 of the 24 25 penal law, in which case, ten years from the date of such sentencing, or 26 eight years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of 27 an indeterminate or the term of a determinate sentence of imprisonment actually imposed; or (B) in the case of a conviction for a class A 28 29 misdemeanor, shall not exceed the greater of: (i) five years from the 30 date of such sentencing, except where the sentence is or includes a 31 sentence of probation on a conviction for a misdemeanor sexual assault, 32 as provided in subparagraph (ii) of paragraph (b) of subdivision three 33 of section 65.00 of the penal law, in which case, six years from the 34 date of such sentencing or (ii) five years from the date of the expira-35 tion of the maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually 36 imposed; or (C) in the case of a conviction for any other offense, shall 37 not exceed the greater of: (i) two years from the date of sentencing, or 38 (ii) two years from the date of the expiration of the maximum term of a definite or intermittent term actually imposed. For purposes of deter-39 mining the duration of an order of protection entered pursuant to this 40 41 subdivision, a conviction shall be deemed to include a conviction that 42 has been replaced by a youthful offender adjudication. Any order of 43 protection entered pursuant to this section shall be extended for up to 44 two years past the date that such order expires if the court finds an 45 extreme case for such extension and states on the record the reasons for 46 the extension. For purposes of this paragraph, "extreme case" shall mean 47 a threat of harm to the protected party continues; defendant has been found quilty of repeated criminal contempt due to a violation of an 48 order of protection; defendant has continued to express intent to commit 49 harm to, intimidate or threaten the protected party. In addition to any 50 51 other conditions such an order may require that the defendant: 52
