IN ASSEMBLY

June 4, 2019

Introduced by M. of A. LiPETRI -- read once and referred to the Committee on Governmental Operations

AN ACT to amend the state technology law, in relation to protecting personal information

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. The state technology law is amended by adding a new article 2 4 to read as follows:

ARTICLE IV

PROTECTION OF PERSONAL INFORMATION

Section 401. Definitions of terms.

402. Duty to protect personal information.

403. Breach of security.

404. Causes of action.

3 § 401. Definitions of terms. The following definitions are applicable
4 to this article, except where different meanings are expressly speci-5 fied:

6 1. "Personal information subject" means any natural person who has his 7 or her personal information collected or maintained by a personal infor-8 mation recipient.

9 2. "Personal information recipient" means any natural person, corpo-10 ration, partnership, limited liability company, unincorporated associ-11 ation, government, or other entity, that, in the course of their 12 personal, business, commercial, corporate, association or governmental 13 operations, collects, receives, stores, maintains, processes, or other-14 wise has access to, personal information.

15 3. "Personal information collector" means any personal information 16 recipient, that does not maintain or store such personal information, or 17 maintain access to such personal information, for more than five 18 minutes, and was provided with the personal information by the personal 19 information subject.

10 of the banking law or any federal savings bank; or any savings and loan 11 association as defined by subdivision eight of section two of the baking 12 law or any federal savings and loan association.

13 5. "Third party personal information holder" means any personal infor-14 mation recipient, that agrees to collect, receive, store, maintain, 15 process, or otherwise have access to, personal information, and was 16 provided with such personal information from a personal information 17 collector, a personal information holder, or another third party
18 personal information holder. "Third party personal information holder" 19 shall not include any of the following: a credit union as defined by 20 subdivision nine of section two of the banking law or a federally char-21 tered credit union as defined by the federal credit union act located 22 and authorized to do business in New York; a savings bank as defined by 23 subdivision four of section two of the banking law or any federal 24 savings bank; or any savings and loan association as defined by subdivi-25 sion eight of section two of the banking law or any federal savings and 26 loan association.

27 6. "Personal information" (a) means any information, including paper-
28 based information or electronic information, that contains a New York
29 state resident's first name and last name, or a New York state resi-30 dent's first initial and last name, in combination with any one or more 31 of the following other informational elements that relate to such resi-32 dent:

36 (viii) any other biometric information which is intended or collected 37 for the purpose of identification of the personal information subject; 38 or

39 (5) Medical information, including but not limited to, any information 40 collected or maintained about a personal information subject pursuant to 41 examination, testing or treatment for physical or mental illness or 42 wellness, or any other information collected or maintained on a personal 43 information subject by a health care provider or health care insurer;

44 (b) shall not include:

45 (1) personal information that is lawfully obtained from publicly 46 available information, or from federal, state or local government 47 records lawfully made available to the general public; or

48 (2) paper-based information that has been intentionally discarded or 49 abandoned by the personal information subject.

50 7. "Breach of security" means the unauthorized access, viewing, acqui-51 sition, copying, duplication, removal or any other use of personal 52 information, either in unencrypted form or in encrypted form together 53 with the confidential process or key that is capable of compromising the 54 security, confidentiality, or integrity of personal information. A good 55 faith unauthorized access, viewing or acquisition of personal informa-56 tion, for the lawful purposes of a personal information collector, shall

1 not be deemed to be a breach of security unless the personal information 2 is thereafter used in an unauthorized manner or is subject to further 3 unauthorized disclosure, as a result of such good faith unauthorized 4 access or acquisition.

5 8. "Record" means any information upon which written, drawn, spoken, 6 visual, or electromagnetic data or images are recorded or preserved, 7 either as paper-based information or electronic information.

8 9. "Paper-based information" means personal information collected or 9 maintained via paper, writing or other drawing medium, or any other 10 physical based, tangible, recording medium.

11 10. "Electronic information" means personal information collected or 12 maintained via computer, telephone, internet, computer network or other 13 electrical, digital, magnetic, wireless, optical, electromagnetic or 14 similar device.

15 11. "Encryption" means the transformation of data into a form in which 16 the meaning of such data cannot be accessed without the use of a confi-17 dential process or key.

18 12. "Office" means the office of information technology services.

19 § 402. Duty to protect personal information. Every personal informa-20 tion recipient shall have a legal duty to protect the security and 21 integrity of all personal information in their custody from unauthorized 22 access or unauthorized use.

23 § 403. Breach of security. 1. Notification to the division of state 24 police. In addition to any other requirements contained within any other 25 provision of law, not later than three days after discovering a security 26 breach involving personal information, any personal information recipi-27 ent that has experienced a breach of security involving personal infor-28 mation, shall make a comprehensive report to the division of state 29 police, in the form and manner required by such division, notifying the 30 division of state police of such security breach.

31 2. Notification of the chief information officer. Not more than two 32 days after receiving the notification required pursuant to subdivision 33 one of this section, the division of state police shall provide the 34 comprehensive report provided to such division to the chief information 35 officer of the office.

36 3. Notification of personal information subjects. In addition to any 37 other requirements pursuant to any other provision of law, upon the 38 receipt of the comprehensive report required by subdivision two of this 39 section, the chief information officer of the office shall require, in a 40 specified timeframe, and in a specified form and manner, that the 41 personal information recipient, or third party personal information 42 recipient, which sustained the breach of security of the personal infor-43 mation, notify all personal information subjects impacted by the securi-44 ty breach, of the fact that there has been a breach of security involv-45 ing their personal information.

46 § 404. Causes of action. 1. Civil actions. Any personal information 47 subject may bring a civil action, against a personal information holder 48 in the supreme court of any county in which the personal information 49 recipient resides or conducts business operations, for damages or equi-50 table relief, arising from a breach of security, and in accordance with 51 the provisions of this section. A civil action for damages or equitable 52 relief, shall not, however, be brought by a personal information 53 subject, in any other state court of competent jurisdiction, other than 54 in accordance with the provisions of this section, if such civil action
55 arises out of a breach of security by a personal information holder. No 56 action shall be brought under this section against a personal information collector or a third party personal information collector unless brought in accordance with the provisions of subparagraph four of paragraph (c) of subdivision two of this section.

2. Civil actions that may be brought by a personal information subject against a personal information recipient.

(a) Timeliness of actions. A civil action may be brought in accordance with this section if such civil action is brought within six years of the date of the reporting of the breach of security as required by section four hundred three of this article, or in the event no such report was ever made, within any time after the date of the discovery of the breach of security by the personal information subject.

(b) Equitable action. Any action brought in accordance with this section, may seek damages and/or equitable relief. If a personal information subject seeks equitable relief for a breach of security involving a security breach of personal information from a personal information recipient, and the court determines that such equitable relief is just and proper and should be awarded, then in addition to such equitable relief, the court may also award the personal information subject costs, disbursements and attorneys fees of the action. No action brought under this section for equitable relief shall prohibit a personal information subject from also bringing any additional cause of action for damages, when such additional cause of action is allowed under this article.

(c) Actions involving damages. Any action brought in accordance with this section, seeking damages for a breach of security involving a security breach of personal information from a personal information recipient, shall be brought as follows:

(1) personal information holders or third party personal information holders with annual revenues of ten million dollars or more. Any personal information holder, or third party personal information holder, that has annual revenues of ten million dollars or more, that experiences a breach of security involving such personal information, shall be strictly liable in a civil action brought in accordance with this section, for damages, if the personal information subject involved in the breach of security sustains any damages as a result of such breach. Such strict liability shall extend to damages in the amount of three times the amount of such damages sustained by the personal information subject, or an amount of up to ten thousand dollars, whichever is greater, together with costs, disbursements and attorneys fees of the action. Where the court finds that the personal information holder or a third party personal information holder, intentionally failed to establish a comprehensive personal information security program or intentionally failed to maintain safeguards, standards, protocols or best practices for the protection of personal information, then the court may also award punitive damages to the plaintiff of an action brought under this subdivision.

(2) personal information holders or third party personal information holders with annual revenues of between one million dollars and ten million dollars. Any personal information holder, or third party personal information holder, that has annual revenues of between one million dollars and ten million dollars that experiences a breach of security involving such personal information, shall be strictly liable in a civil action brought in accordance with this section, for damages, if the personal information subject involved in the breach of security sustains any damages as a result of such breach. Such strict liability shall extend to damages in the amount of three times the amount of such damages sustained by the personal information subject, or an amount of

1 up to five thousand dollars, whichever is greater, together with costs, 2 disbursements and attorneys fees of the action. Where the court finds 3 that the personal information holder or a third party personal informa-4 tion holder, intentionally failed to establish a comprehensive personal 5 information security program or intentionally failed to maintain safe-6 guards, standards, protocols or best practices for the protection of 7 personal information, then the court may also award punitive damages to 8 the plaintiff of an action brought under this subdivision.

9 (3) personal information holders or third party personal information 10 holders with annual revenues of less than one million dollars. Any 11 personal information holder, or third party personal information holder, 12 that has annual revenues of less than one million dollars, and that 13 fails to maintain the safeguards, standards, protocols or best practices 14 for the protection of personal information as established in its compre-15 hensive personal information security program and that experiences a 16 breach of security involving such personal information, shall be strict-17 ly liable in a civil action brought in accordance with this section, for 18 damages, if the personal information subject involved in the breach of 19 security sustains any damages as a result of such breach. Such strict 20 liability shall extend to damages in the amount of three times the 21 amount of such damages sustained by the personal information subject, or 22 an amount of up to one thousand dollars, whichever is greater, together 23 with costs, disbursements and attorneys fees of the action. Where the 24 court finds that the personal information holder or a third party 25 personal information holder, intentionally failed to establish a compre-26 hensive personal information security program or intentionally failed to 27 maintain safeguards, standards, protocols or best practices for the 28 protection of personal information, then the court may also award puni-29 tive damages to the plaintiff of an action brought under this subdivi-30 sion.

31 (4) personal information collectors. Any personal information collec-32 tor that fails to maintain the safeguards, standards, protocols or best 33 practices for the protection of personal information, or that fails to 34 establish a comprehensive personal information security program and that 35 experiences a breach of security involving such personal information, 36 shall be strictly liable in a civil action for damages brought in 37 accordance with this section, in the amount of such damages so 38 sustained. Where the court finds that the personal information collector 39 intentionally failed to establish a comprehensive personal information 40 security program or intentionally failed to maintain safeguards, stand-41 ards, protocols or best practices for the protection of personal infor-42 mation, then the court may also award punitive damages to the plaintiff 43 of an action brought under this subdivision.

44 (5) no action brought under this section for damages shall prohibit a 45 personal information subject from also bringing any additional cause of 46 action for equitable relief, when such additional cause of action is 47 also allowed under this article.

48 3. Civil actions that may be brought by the attorney general against a 49 personal information recipient.

50 (a) Whenever the attorney general believes from evidence satisfactory 51 to him or her that there is a violation of this article by a personal 52 information holder or third party personal information holder with annu-53 al revenues of ten million dollars or more, he or she may bring an 54 action in the name and on behalf of the people of the state of New York, 55 in a court of justice having jurisdiction to issue an injunction, to 56 enjoin and restrain the continuation of such violation. In such action,

1 preliminary relief may be granted under article sixty-three of the civil 2 practice law and rules.

3 (b) In such action the court may award damages for actual costs or 4 losses incurred by a personal information subject suffering damages
5 pursuant to this article, if the breach occurred pursuant to this arti-6 cle, including consequential financial losses. Whenever the court shall 7 determine in such action that a personal information holder or third 8 party personal information holder with annual revenues of ten million 9 dollars or more violated this article, the personal information holder 10 or third party personal information holder shall be held strictly liable 11 and responsible for damages for actual costs or losses incurred by a 12 personal information subject suffering damages.

13 (c) Whenever the court shall determine in such action that a personal 14 information holder or third party personal information holder with annu-15 al revenues of ten million dollars or more violated this article, the 16 court may impose a civil penalty of two hundred fifty thousand dollars 17 per instance of breach, provided that the total amounts shall not exceed 18 one hundred million dollars.

19 (d) The remedies provided by this section shall be in addition to any 20 other lawful remedy available.

21 (e) No action may be brought under the provisions of this section 22 unless such action is commenced within six years immediately after 23 either the date of the act complained of or the date of discovery of 24 such act on which the attorney general became aware of the violation, or 25 the date of notice sent pursuant to section four hundred three of this 26 article.

27 § 2. This act shall take effect on the one hundred eightieth day after 28 it shall have become a law.
