b. If the injured party is incapacitated, deceased, or otherwise unavailable as a matter of law, an action under subdivision a of this section may be brought by and in the name of the surviving spouse, child, parent or guardian, or personal representative of the injured party and on behalf of the spouse, children or parents, or if none of these survive, on behalf of the injured party's estate.

- c. If a person, acting under the color of any statute, ordinance, 7 8 regulation, custom, or usage, of this state or any of its political 9 subdivisions, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any other person the 10 deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state, or interferes with or attempts to 11 interfere with the exercise or enjoyment of those rights, privileges or 12 immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state, by 13 threats, intimidation or coercion, the attorney general may bring a 14 civil action for damages, injunctive relief or other appropriate relief. 15 16 The civil action shall be brought in the name of the state and may be brought on behalf of the injured party. If the attorney general proceeds 17 with and prevails in an action brought pursuant to this section, the 18 court shall order the distribution of any award of damages to the 19 20 injured party and shall award reasonable attorney's fees and costs to 21 the attorney general.
  - § 31. Proceedings. a. An action brought pursuant to this article shall be filed in a court of competent jurisdiction within the state.
    - b. Upon application of any party, a jury trial shall be directed.
  - § 32. Burden of proof. a. The standard of proof that applies to all actions brought under this article is the preponderance of the evidence standard.
- b. Where a defendant has raised a factual defense, that defendant bears the burden of persuasion and must establish the defense by preponderance of the evidence.
- § 33. Legal defense of "exemption". a. A defendant can raise the legal defense of exemption where that defendant can affirmatively show that he or she was not on notice that his or her course of conduct would result in the deprivation, interference or attempted interference of an individual's rights, privileges or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state.
- 1. A defendant must establish evidence of lack of notice by clear and convincing evidence.
  - 2. In determining whether a defendant is entitled to a defense of exemption, the judge may consider the defendant's level of formal and informal training, experience, and exposure to legal information. Probative evidence that a defendant was on notice could include, but is not limited to, the following sources:

  - iv. Verbal instructions;
- 49 v. Internal memoranda reflecting prior practice; and

1 the defendant's employer as the plaintiff would have recovered from the 2 defendant.

- b. The defense of exemption shall be unavailable to any defendant who engages in a course of conduct that subjects, or causes to be subjected, any other person the deprivation, interference or attempted interference of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state, if he or she engaged in that course of conduct intentionally, knowingly or recklessly.
- c. In deciding whether the defense of exemption applies, the court shall:
- 1. Consider all the pleadings in the light most favorable to the non-movant and take all factual pleadings in the complaint as true; and
- 2. Make a determination as to whether there was a deprivation, interference or attempted interference with an individual's rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state applying the considerations in paragraph one of this subdivision. The court shall not bypass this inquiry to simply decide the question of whether a defendant was on notice that his or her course of conduct would result in the deprivation, interference or attempted interference of an individual's rights, privileges or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state.
- d. Limited discovery confined to information necessary to resolve whether the defense of exemption is applicable is appropriate when the record as presented by defendant in asserting this defense is inadequate and the party opposing the applicability of the defense demonstrates that it can show, through discovery, that the defendant was on notice that his or her course of conduct would result in the deprivation, interference or attempted interference of an individual's rights, privileges or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws of this state.
- e. The legal defense of exemption is an affirmative defense that must be raised pursuant to paragraph twelve of subdivision (a) and subdivision (e) of rule three thousand two hundred eleven of the civil practice law and rules prior to the defendant answering the complaint, otherwise the defense shall be waived.
- § 34. Pre-emption. Any action, and defenses hereunder, brought under this article borne of facts that may also give rise to an action under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 are independent of any federal action, and defenses thereunder, where state law provides the standard of conduct for the official acting under the color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of this state or any of its political subdivisions.
- § 35. Remedies. a. A civil action under this article can be brought 42 for monetary damages, injunctive relief or any other relief that the 43 court deems appropriate.
  - b. Punitive damages may be awarded in actions under this article where it is proven by clear and convincing evidence that the defendant's course of conduct was motivated by the victim's race, gender, religion, sexual orientation, nationality, ethnicity or disability.
- c. In addition to any damages, civil penalty, injunction or other appropriate relief awarded in an action brought pursuant to this article, the court may award the prevailing party reasonable attorney's fees and costs.
- § 3. Subdivision (a) of rule 3211 of the civil practice law and rules is amended by adding a new paragraph 12 to read as follows:
- 54 12. the party is immune from liability pursuant to subdivision e of 55 section thirty-three of the civil rights law.
