STATE OF NEW YORK

2021-2022 Regular Sessions

IN ASSEMBLY

January 26, 2021

Introduced by M. of A. PRETLOW -- read once and referred to the Committee on Judiciary

AN ACT establishing the New York state public defense commission, providing for the members, powers and duties thereof, and providing fiscal relief to localities; and to amend the county law, in relation to public defense services

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Legislative findings and declaration. The legislature finds and declares that in certain proceedings the state is required to provide high quality legal assistance to persons otherwise financially unable to obtain counsel and/or afford the necessary expenses of representation. Providing public defense services to those who face an economic barrier to obtaining legal counsel serves the ends of justice in accordance with rights and privileges guaranteed by the constitution of the state of New York and the constitution of the United States of America. The availability of high quality public defense services affirms the faith of our citizens in our government of laws.

The legislature further finds that the present system of requiring localities to provide public defense services with little state financial assistance and no state oversight does not and cannot meet the foregoing objectives. The existing statutory limit on fees for counsel assigned to provide public defense services has resulted in a shortage of qualified lawyers to provide defense services, thereby denying or delaying the representation to which public defense clients are entitled. The present system has caused court congestion and delay, and eroded public trust and confidence in the legal system.

The legislature further finds that localities are struggling to carry the increasing burden of fulfilling the state mandate to provide defense services, and cannot bear alone the cost of raising assigned counsel fees to reasonable levels. Local property owners should be given some relief from the obligation of providing public defense services.

The legislature further finds that no mechanism currently exists for state oversight of the provision of public defense services, despite its character as a state mandate and the appropriation of some state funds to support public defense services. Sound fiscal and governmental policy requires oversight of defense services to ensure that the state mandate is being met, and to determine the most effective and efficient future allocation of state funds. Certain defense services can most efficiently and effectively be provided by an independent commission. Some localities, especially those with smaller populations, could benefit by a mechanism for delivering defense services directly by the state.

The legislature further finds that public defense services must be provided in a manner that ensures the independence of public defense providers.

Therefore, to address these needs, the legislature establishes in this act the New York state public defense commission to oversee public defense services in this state, reimburse localities for public defense expenditures, and provide defense services in extraordinary circumstances.
