 the "NY Food Insecurity, Farm Resiliency and Rural Poverty act".

§ 2. Legislative findings and intent. The legislature hereby recog-3 nizes that the agricultural industry is a significant, economically 4 5 diverse and productive industry that is vital to the state of New York б and has a substantial impact on the state's economy. That the COVID-19 pandemic, and the subsequent mandates and restrictions, have severely 7 8 disrupted the agricultural markets to an extent seldom realized by the 9 state. Consequently, the legislature hereby recognizes that a comprehen-10 sive support structure is necessary to ensure the viability of New York 11 farms and provide reliable market expectations for New York farmers. § 3. The agriculture and markets law is amended by adding a new article 12 13 24-A to read as follows:

8 9	§ 291. Short title. This article shall be known and may be cited as the "NY Food Insecurity, Farm Resiliency and Rural Poverty act".
10	§ 291-a. Legislative intent. The legislature hereby recognizes that
11	New York state boasts a valuable agricultural sector as well as a
12	comprehensive structure of ten regional food banks which are tailored to
13	each region's resources and needs; New York's farmers and the state's
14	food banks work in conjunction with over four thousand local food
15	pantries and non-profit partner organizations to serve between three and
16	five million New Yorkers annually. In support of these efforts, New York
17	agriculture, which employs nearly two hundred thousand residents,
18	produces eighteen billion pounds of fresh produce annually, as well as
19	over fifteen billion pounds of milk and two hundred seventy-three 20	million pounds of meat. The agricultural sector in New York state is 21	worth more than five hundred seventy-five billion in direct economic
22	activity annually; ninety-eight percent of New York farms are family-
23	owned, with an average farm size of about two hundred five acres and a
24	median producer age of about fifty-seven years. However profitable in
25	terms of revenue, it must be acknowledged that the amount of acreage
26	under tillage has been in decline; since two thousand twelve, acreage
27	under cultivation has declined by nearly three hundred twenty thousand
28	acres.
29	The COVID-19 pandemic and, more specifically, New York state's aggres-
30	sive response to it has caused severe disruption to the lives and live-
31	lihoods of New York farmers; mandatory shutdowns and capacity limita-
32	tions related to the state's COVID-19 response, especially during the 33	spring of two thousand twenty, created a massive deficit in demand for
34	agricultural products and services in sectors ranging from food-service
35	to tourism, especially concerning dairy products. This drastically
36	reduced demand forced New York's farmers to dump millions of gallons of 37	milk as unprofitable waste, costing tens of millions of dollars in
38	potential revenue.
39	New York state's COVID-19 response has thrown into sharp relief some 40	ways in which the relationship between New York state agriculture and
41	its food banks could be improved, both for the benefit of New York farm-
42	ers and those in need. These include: agricultural assistance to 43	prevent agricultural food waste and other problems associated with
44	temporarily low demand for agricultural products due to emergency
45	disruptions; access to, and capacity issues with, cold storage equip-
46	ment, and the acquisition and maintenance of food transportation. To 47	address these needs, the New York Food Insecurity, Farm Resiliency and
48	Rural Poverty act is hereby introduced.
