Introduced by M. of A. WEINSTEIN, HEVESI, McDONALD -- read once and referred to the Committee on Codes

AN ACT to amend the civil practice law and rules, in relation to the rate of interest applicable to money judgments arising out of consumer debt

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. Section 5004 of the civil practice law and rules, as amended by chapter 258 of the laws of 1981, is amended to read as follows:

§ 5004. Rate of interest. (a) Interest shall be at the rate of nine per centum per annum, except where otherwise provided by statute; provided the annual rate of interest to be paid on a judgment or accrued claim in an action arising out of a consumer debt where a natural person is a defendant shall be the lesser of the one-year United States treasury bill rate or three per centum per annum.

(b) For the purposes of this section, (i) the "one-year United States treasury bill rate" means: (1) for judgments entered on or after the effective date of the chapter of the laws of two thousand twenty-one which amended this section, the weekly average one-year constant maturity treasury yield, as published by the board of governors of the federal reserve system, for the first full calendar week of the calendar month preceding the date in which the judgment awarding damages is entered, and (2) for any part of post-entry interest on a judgment entered before the effective date of the chapter of the laws of two thousand twenty-one which amended this section that is unpaid as of such effective date, at the rate of two per centum per annum; and (ii) "consumer debt" means any obligation or alleged obligation of any natural person to pay money arising out of a transaction in which the money, property, insurance or services which are the subject of the transaction are primarily for personal, family or household purposes, whether or not such obligation has been reduced to judgment, including, but not limited to, a consumer credit transaction, as defined in subdivision (f) of section one hundred five of this chapter.

(c) The one-year United States treasury bill rate shall be calculated by the office of court administration. The office of court administration shall publish the rate defined in subparagraph one of paragraph (i) of subdivision (b) of this section for permanent public access on such office's website on or before the first business day of each month. The office of court administration shall publish the rate defined in subparagraph two of paragraph (i) of subdivision (b) of this section for permanent public access on such office's website on or before the fifth business day after the effective date of this subdivision.

(d) This section does not affect or create any rights or remedies related to any amounts paid to satisfy judgments or to accrued interest paid prior to the effective date of this subdivision.

(e) If any word, phrase, clause, sentence, paragraph, subdivision, or part of this section or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid by any court of competent jurisdiction after exhaustion of all further judicial review, the invalidity shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this section or applications of this article which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this section are severable.

§ 2. This act shall take effect on the forty-fifth day after it shall have become a law, and shall apply to all money judgments, including judgments that are not yet fully paid and satisfied as of the effective date of this act.
