

STATE OF NEW YORK

6532

2021-2022 Regular Sessions

IN SENATE

May 5, 2021

Introduced by Sens. KAMINSKY, PALUMBO -- read twice and ordered printed, and when printed to be committed to the Committee on Environmental Conservation

AN ACT to amend the environmental conservation law, in relation to permitting kelp cultivation in underwater lands at Gardiner's and Peconic bays

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. Legislative findings. The state of New York has made a 2 significant investment in combating nitrogen pollution, low dissolved
3 oxygen, harmful algal blooms and a variety of other water quality 4 impairments that threaten our coastal waters and fisheries and human 5 health.

6 Kelp, which is native to New York waters, plays an important role in 7 the fight to restore the health of our waterways. Kelp acts as a natural 8 sink for carbon and nitrogen in our bays while increasing oxygen levels
9 and reducing acidification. Kelp serves as a natural habitat for fish 10 and shellfish in the state's waters. As New York continues to fight 11 climate change and nitrogen pollution, sustainable kelp farming can 12 provide substantial environmental benefits for the state. Kelp farming 13 has a very low environmental impact footprint, requiring no additional 14 water or fertilizer use, but yields a valuable product.

15 In addition to the environmental benefits, there are economic benefits 16 for New York state by entering the emerging kelp farming market. Kelp is 17 an edible and nutritious food with a growing market. It is also utilized 18 in cosmetic and personal care products and used in fertilizer and animal 19 feed.

20 States including Connecticut, Massachusetts, Maine, and Rhode Island
21 have already established kelp and commercial seaweed aquaculture 22 programs. In New York, there is an opportunity to promote this industry

1 by providing access for kelp aquaculture to state owned underwater lands
2 ceded to Suffolk County.

3 The cultivation of kelp is a growing industry with significant econom-
4 ic, health, and environmental benefits. The enactment of this legis-
5 lation would promote kelp aquaculture in Gardiner's and Peconic Bays, 6 create economic benefits in New York state, and restore water quality 7 and fish habitat in the state's waterways.

8 § 2. Section 13-0302 of the environmental conservation law, as added
9 by chapter 425 of the laws of 2004, subdivision 10 as added by chapter
