1 (vi) engaging in conduct which results in the death or serious bodily 2 injury of another person.

- (c) "objectively reasonable" shall mean a standard used to judge a police officer's use of force which are reasonable based on the totality of the circumstances known to such officer at the time of such use of force;
- (d) "physical injury" shall have the same meaning as provided for in subdivision nine of section 10.00 of the penal law; and
- (e) "serious physical injury" shall have the same meaning as provided for in subdivision ten of section 10.00 of the penal law.
- 2. Duty to intervene. An on-duty police officer who is present and observes another police officer using physical force that he or she reasonably believes to be clearly excessive or beyond that which is objectively reasonable under the circumstances, shall be required, when such officer has a realistic opportunity to do so safely, to intervene to prevent the use of such excessive force.
- 3. Failure to intervene. (a) A police officer who fails to intervene when appropriate may:
- (i) be held criminally liable for any offense under the penal law for which failure to intervene satisfies every element of such offense, or for any offense resulting from such officer's failure to intervene;
  - (ii) be subject to termination by his or her employer if such officer:
  - (1) had a realistic opportunity to intervene safely;
- (2) acted while purporting or pretending to act within the scope and performance of his or her official duties; and
- (3) deprived an individual of rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution or the laws of the United States.
- (iii) be held civilly liable to any aggrieved party when such officer observes or has reason to know that:
  - (1) excessive force is being used;
  - (2) an individual has been unjustifiably arrested; or
- 32 (3) any constitutional violation has been committed by a fellow offi- 33 cer.
  - (b) When a police officer fails to intervene in an incident which results in death or serious physical injury, such incident shall be referred to the district attorney.
  - (c) The commissioner shall authorize an investigation of any allegations of a police officer's failure to intervene. Such officer may be placed on administrative leave during the period of such investigation. Any final disciplinary action shall be subject to arbitration pursuant to article seventy-five of the civil practice law and rules.
  - (d) Police officers who falsely report incidents of inappropriate or excessive use of force by a fellow police officer may be subject to criminal liability pursuant to section 240.60 of the penal law.
- 4. Liability. Notwithstanding any provision of law to the contrary, 46 any police officer found to be civilly liable for excessive force shall 47 be liable for any judgments made against the municipality, state agency
  48 or public authority if such judgment is directly connected to such offi49 cer's use of excessive force.
- 5. Reporting. Upon a police officer's observation of the use of physical force by another police officer who he or she reasonably believes to be clearly excessive or beyond that which is objectively reasonable under the circumstances, such officer shall file a formal complaint with the chief of his or her police department, the county sheriff or the superintendent of the state police. Reporting requirements shall apply whether the use of physical force occurred while the offending officer
