AN ACT to amend the public health law, in relation to creating a food security, empowerment and economic development program

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

1 Section 1. Legislative intent. The legislature finds there is a need
2 for community economic development to improve the food system in areas 3 where there is an inadequate food supply and many residents who rely on 4 fluctuating government and private food assistance. There is a need to 5 develop food resources and businesses in these communities that provide 6 higher quality, more accessible food. The legislature also finds that 7 local farmers and food producers can and should benefit from these 8 efforts.

9 The legislature further finds that as the federal government and New 10 York state attempt to reduce dependency on government, there is a need 11 to support families leaving public assistance for work. One approach to 12 increasing work opportunities and addressing the food needs in these 13 communities is through the development of "community food security", 14 which is defined as people successfully obtaining an acceptable, nutri-15 tious diet using local non-emergency sources.

16 Community food security projects are designed to meet the food needs 17 of low income people, increase the self-reliance of communities in 18 providing for their own food needs, and promote comprehensive responses
19 to local food, farm and nutrition issues. For example, these projects 20 provide training in urban gardening and sales, assist entrepreneurs
21 starting micro-enterprises, support farmers' markets in distressed 22 neighborhoods and provide food-based educational opportunities for 23 schools.

24 The legislature supports the goals of self-reliance, community-based 25 economic development, profitable local agriculture, improved nutrition 26 and helping families and individuals help themselves. Therefore, the 27 legislature finds that the creation of a community food security program

15 § 2790. Community food security, empowerment and economic development

19 designed to meet the food needs of low-income people, increase the self-20 reliance of communities in providing for their own food needs and 21 promote comprehensive responses to local food, farm and nutrition 22 issues. These projects will attempt to: increase the availability, in 23 the targeted communities, of culturally acceptable, affordable, nutri-24 tionally adequate food, from local sources whenever possible; develop 25 linkages between local farmers and communities served by the project;
26 support job development and job training, including work experience
27 required by welfare reform; support the development of entrepreneurial

32 for program projects, subject to the availability of funding, to commu-
33 nity-based nonprofit organizations and local governments. In order to 34 meet the goals of the program, applicants may create partnerships with 35 other entities, including limited participation by for-profit enter-36 prises.

37 Preference for these grants shall be given to projects located in 38 communities with a significant percentage of the population participat-39 ing in government and private food assistance programs.

40 Projects funded by these grants shall be designed to become self-sus-
41 taining, not dependent on continual grants from this program.
