STATE OF NEW YORK

IN ASSEMBLY

January 30, 2024

Introduced by M. of A. REYES -- read once and referred to the Committee on Labor

AN ACT to amend the labor law, in relation to requiring retail worker employers to develop and implement programs to prevent workplace violence

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. This act shall be known and may be cited as the "retail worker safety act".

§ 2. Legislative findings. The legislature finds and declares that violence against retail workers is a growing problem in New York. From verbal harassment that often leads to physical violence, all the way to racially motivated mass shootings of retail workers and customers, retail workers are on the front lines of violence in our society. Given that these stores offer essential necessities to the public, this violence is also a threat to public health and safety. The legislature also finds and declares that many employers have not done enough to take responsibility for the health and safety of their employees. Few employers have conducted risk assessments of their workplace, and even fewer have adequately trained their employees in how to respond to harassment and potentially violent situations.

§ 3. The labor law is amended by adding a new section 27-e to read as follows:

§ 27-e. Duty of retail worker employers to develop and implement programs to prevent workplace violence. 1. Definitions. For the purposes of this section:

a. "Employer" means any person, entity, business, corporation, partnership, limited liability company, or an association employing at least ten retail workers. The term shall not include the state, any political subdivision of the state, a public authority, or any other governmental agency or instrumentality.

b. "Employee" means a retail worker working for an employer.

EXPLANATION--Matter in italics (underscored) is new; matter in brackets [-] is old law to be omitted.

2. Risk evaluation and determination. Every employer shall evaluate its workplace or workplaces to determine the presence of factors or situations in such workplace or workplaces that might place employees at risk of workplace violence. Examples of such factors shall include, but not be limited to:

a. working late night or early morning hours;

b. exchanging money with the public;

c. working alone or in small numbers;

e. areas of previous security problems.

3. Written workplace violence prevention program. Every employer shall develop and implement a written workplace violence prevention program for its workplace or workplaces that includes the following:

(5) providing employee training; and

(6) establishing and implementing reporting systems for incidents of workplace violence.

4. Employee information and training. a. Every employer shall make the written workplace violence prevention program available, upon request, to its employees, their designated representatives and the department. New hires shall be provided a copy of the written program upon hire. The written program shall be available in English, Spanish and any other language requested by employees, which shall be made available within thirty days of such request. All trainings shall be conducted in English as well as the primary languages spoken in the workplace.

b. Every employer shall provide its employees with the following information and training on the risks of workplace violence in their workplace or workplaces at the time of their initial assignment and annually thereafter:

(1) employees shall be informed of the requirements of this section, the risk factors in their workplace or workplaces, and the location and availability of the written workplace violence prevention program required by this section; and

(2) employee training shall include at least: (a) de-escalation tactics; (b) active shooter drills; (c) measures employees can take to protect themselves from such risks identified in the written workplace violence prevention program, including specific procedures the employer has implemented to protect employees, such as appropriate work practices, emergency procedures, use of security alarms, panic buttons and other devices, dealing with harassment and violence from customers and coworkers, and any other risk factors identified pursuant to subdivision two of this section; and (d) the details of the written workplace violence prevention program developed by the employer.

5. Documentation of workplace violence incidents. Every employer shall document each incident of workplace violence and shall maintain a copy of such documentation. Each incident shall also be reported into a publicly accessible state database.

6. Annual review. Every employer shall review the number and scope of workplace incidents annually and shall make changes to the risk factors considered pursuant to subdivision two of this section and the written workplace violence prevention program as necessary and appropriate.

7. Panic buttons. Every employer of fifty or more retail workers nationwide shall install panic buttons at easily accessible locations throughout the workplace or workplaces.
