3. "Owner" means the owner of the real property at the time the state statute, regulation or rule took effect, or the owner at the time that the permit, license or authorization was denied by the state.

- 4. "Taking of private property" means an activity wherein private property is taken such that compensation to the owner of that property is required by the fifth and fourteenth amendments to the constitution of the United States or by section four hundred forty-seven-d of this article.
- 5. "Person" means a person or persons having an interest which is or may be adversely affected by the statute, regulation or rule, or by the provision or condition of any permit, license or authorization.
- § 447-c. Attorney general rule review. No rule or regulation promulgated by any state agency, division, board or commission shall become effective until the attorney general has reviewed such rule or regulation and has informed the issuing entity in writing as to the potential of such rule or regulation to result in a taking of private property.
- § 447-d. Diminution in value. 1. Cause of action. The owner of any real property may bring an action against the state whenever the application of any state statute, rule or regulation to such real property, or the denial of any permit, license or authorization of any kind by the state causes a diminution in value of the property of fifty percent or more
- 2. Jurisdiction. Such action may be filed in supreme court which shall have exclusive jurisdiction of the claim, and the owner shall be entitled to a trial by jury. In such action, the owner may either recover:
- (a) a sum equal to the diminution in value of the real property, and retain title thereto; or
- (b) the entire fair market value of the real property prior to the diminution in value of fifty percent or more, and transfer title to the state upon payment of such fair market value. In any such action, the court may award reasonable and necessary costs, including attorney fees, to any prevailing plaintiff. If the statute, rule or regulation is rescinded, or if the permit, license or authorization is granted, prior to final judgment, then the owner shall be entitled to recover in the pending action any reasonable and necessary costs, including attorney fees, incurred to date, together with any economic losses sustained by reason of the acts giving rise to the diminution in value. It shall be an affirmative defense to any such action if the owner's use or proposed use of the real property amounts to a public nuisance which shall be defined as a substantial and unreasonable interference with the use and enjoyment of an interest in land which is common to the public.
- § 447-e. Invalidation. 1. Cause of action. Any person may commence a civil action in supreme court on his or her own behalf against the state to invalidate any statute, rule or regulation pertaining to real property, or to invalidate any provision or condition of any permit, license or authorization which does not substantially advance its stated governmental purpose.
- 2. Ripeness. A suit for invalidation shall be ripe for adjudication upon the enactment of the statute, regulation or rule, or the imposition of any provision or condition of any permit, license or authorization to any parcel of real property.
- § 447-f. Statute of limitations. 1. Application. The provisions of this article shall apply to state statutes, rules and regulations and any provision or condition of any permit, license or authorization, in effect on or after the effective date of this article.

2. Statute of limitations. The statute of limitations for actions brought pursuant to this article shall be six years from the enactment of any statute, regulation or rule, or the denial of any permit, license or authorization by the state. 5

§ 447-q. Constitutional or statutory rights not restricted. Nothing in 6 this article shall restrict any remedy or right which any person or class of persons may have under any provision of the state or federal constitution or laws of the state or United States.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.
