physical injury to such spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner.

Domestic abuse in the second degree is a class A misdemeanor.

§ 120.85 Domestic abuse in the first degree.

A person is guilty of domestic abuse in the first degree when:

1. With intent to cause physical injury to his or her spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner, he or she causes such injury to such spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner, or to a third person; or

2. He or she recklessly causes physical injury to his or her spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner; or

3. With criminal negligence, he or she causes physical injury to his or her spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner by means of a deadly weapon or dangerous instrument; or

4. He or she commits a crime against his or her spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner, and he or she has previously been convicted of a crime against his or her spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner within the preceding five years. The person against whom a crime has been committed for purposes of culpability under this subdivision may be a different person than whom the predicate crime was committed against during the preceding five years. For purposes of this subdivision, any period of time during which the defendant was incarcerated for any reason between the commission of any previous crimes and the commission of the crime in violation of this subdivision shall be excluded and such five year period shall be extended by the period or period of time during which the defendant was incarcerated.

Domestic abuse in the first degree is a class E felony.

§ 2. The criminal procedure law is amended by adding a new section 200.64 to read as follows:

§ 200.64 Indictment; special information for domestic abuse offender.

1. Whenever a person is charged with the commission or attempted commission of domestic abuse in the first degree as defined in subdivision four of section 120.85 of the penal law, an indictment or information for such offense shall be accompanied by a special information, filed by the district attorney with the court, alleging that the defendant was previously convicted of a crime, that at the time of the previous crime or at an earlier time the defendant was the spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner, as defined in section 120.75 of the penal law of the victim of such crime, and that such previous conviction took place within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 120.85 of the penal law. Except as provided in this section, the people may not refer to such special information during trial nor adduce any evidence concerning the allegations therein.

2. At any time before the close of the people's case, the court, in the absence of the jury, must arraign the defendant upon such information and advise him or her that he or she may admit each such allegation, deny any such allegation or remain mute with respect to any such allegation. Depending upon the defendant's response, the trial of the indictment or information must then proceed as follows:

(a) (i) If the previous conviction is of domestic abuse in the second degree as defined by section 120.80 of the penal law, and the defendant admits the previous conviction or that it took place within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 120.85 of the penal law,

1 the admitted allegation or allegations shall be deemed established for
2 all subsequent purposes, including sentencing pursuant to section 70.00
3 of the penal law. The court must submit the case to the jury as if the 4 admitted allegation or allegations were not elements of the offense. The 5 court may not submit to the jury any lesser included offense which is 6 distinguished from the offense charged solely by the fact that the 7 previous conviction is not an element thereof.

8 (ii) If the defendant denies the previous conviction or remains mute
9 with respect to it, the people may prove that element of the offense
10 before the jury as a part of their case.

11 (iii) If the defendant denies that the previous conviction took place
12 within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 120.85
13 of the penal law, or remains mute with respect to that matter, the 14 people may prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, before the jury as part of 15 their case, that the previous conviction took place within the time
16 period specified.

17 (b) (i) If the previous conviction is for a crime other than domestic 18 abuse in the second degree as defined by section 120.80 of the penal 19 law, and the defendant admits the previous conviction, that it took 20 place within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 21 120.85 of the penal law, or that the defendant was the spouse, former 22 spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner as 23 defined in section 120.75 of the penal law of the victim of such crime, 24 the admitted allegation or allegations shall be deemed established for 25 all subsequent purposes, including sentencing pursuant to section 70.00
26 of the penal law. The court must submit the case to the jury as if the 27 admitted allegation or allegations were not elements of the offense. The 28 court may not submit to the jury any lesser included offense which is 29 distinguished from the offense charged solely by the fact that the 30 previous conviction is not an element thereof.

31 (ii) If the defendant denies the previous conviction or remains mute
32 with respect to it, the people may prove that element of the offense
33 before the jury as a part of their case.

34 (iii) If the defendant denies that the previous conviction took place
35 within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 120.85
36 of the penal law, or remains mute with respect to that matter, the 37 people may prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, before the jury as part of 38 their case, that the previous conviction took place within the time
39 period specified.

40 (iv) If the defendant denies that the defendant was the spouse, former 41 spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner as 42 defined in section 120.75 of the penal law of the victim of such previ-
43 ous crime, or remains mute with respect to that matter, the people may 44 prove that element of the offense before the jury as a part of their 45 case.

46 3. Notwithstanding subdivision one, and subparagraph (i) of paragraph 47 (a) and subparagraph (i) of paragraph (b) of subdivision two of this 48 section, if evidence regarding the prior conviction, or that the defend-49 ant was the spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or 50 domestic partner as defined in section 120.75 of the penal law of the 51 victim of such previous crime, is relevant to help prove the crime or 52 crimes charged in the indictment or information, such evidence shall be 53 admissible.

54 4. A determination pursuant to this section that the defendant has a 55 previous conviction, that at the time of the prior offense the defendant 56 was the spouse, former spouse, fellow parent of a child in common or domestic partner as defined in section 120.75 of the penal law of the victim of such previous crime, or that the previous conviction took place within the time period specified in subdivision four of section 120.85 of the penal law, shall be binding in any future proceeding in which the issue may arise unless the conviction for the domestic abuse offense charged in the indictment or information is vacated or reversed.
