 - 2. Notwithstanding any other law, rule or regulation:
- (a) No third-party food delivery service shall charge a food service establishment a delivery fee that totals more than fifteen percent of the purchase price of each online order;
- (b) It shall be unlawful for a third-party food delivery service to charge a food service establishment any fee or fees, other than a delivery fee permitted under paragraph (a) of this subdivision, for the use of services provided by such third-party delivery service that is greater than five percent of the purchase price of each online order, provided that such cap shall not apply to a transaction fee for use of their service. It shall further be unlawful for a third-party food delivery service to charge a food service establishment a transaction fee that totals more than three percent of the purchase price of each online order, provided however that a third-party food delivery service may charge a food service establishment a transaction fee of more than three percent of the purchase price of an online order if: (i) such transaction fee is charged to the food service establishment in the same amount as the charge imposed upon the third-party food delivery service for such online order, and (ii) such third-party food delivery service can provide proof of such charge imposed upon it to both the attorney general and the relevant food service establishment upon request.
- (c) Any fee or other charges from a third-party food delivery service to a food service establishment beyond such maximum five percent fee per order and a transaction fee pursuant to paragraph (b) of this subdivision, and a delivery fee collected pursuant to paragraph (a) of this subdivision, shall be unlawful; and

- 3. Whenever there shall be a violation of this section, an application may be made by the attorney general in the name of the people of the state of New York to a court or justice having jurisdiction to issue an injunction to enjoin and restrain the continuance of such violation; and if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the court or justice that the defendant has, in fact, violated this section, an injunction may be issued by such court or justice, enjoining and restraining any further violation, without requiring proof that any person has, in fact, been injured or damaged thereby. In any such proceeding, the court may make allowances to the attorney general and direct restitution of an amount not to exceed the amount of fees collected in violation of this section by a third-party food delivery service, attorneys' fees, and such other remedies as the court may deem appropriate. Whenever the court shall determine that a violation of this section has occurred, the court may impose a civil penalty of not more than one thousand dollars for each violation.
