- 1 Section 1. The office of fire prevention and control is hereby author-
2 ized to conduct a study on lithium-ion battery fires and prevention in
3 conjunction with the New York state energy research and development
4 authority and the New York city fire department. Such study shall 5 include but not be limited to:
- 6 (a) review the severity of lithium-ion battery fires, including what 7 specific components of the battery causes severe fires;
 - 8 (b) examine the effectiveness of lithium fireproof blankets on such 9 fires;
 - 10 (c) examine the current measures of safety implemented by fire depart-
11 ments across New York in relation to lithium-ion battery fires;
 - 12 (d) examine measures other fire departments in different states and 13 countries have implemented to increase safety in relation to lithium-ion
14 battery fires;
 - 15 (e) examine and make recommendations on measures the state of New York
16 may take in order to increase safety related to lithium-ion battery
17 fires;
 - 18 (f) examine and make recommendations for establishing training
19 requirements for proper handling of lithium-ion battery fires;
 - 20 (g) examine and make recommendations to update current building codes
21 for charging devices that may contain lithium-ion batteries;
 - 22 (h) develop a public awareness and education program in relation to 23 lithium-ion battery fires including but not limited to: storage,
24 disposal, and lithium-ion battery fire suppression;

EXPLANATION--Matter in italics (underscored) is new; matter in brackets [-] is old law to be omitted.
