(b) reidentify or otherwise link information that is not maintained in a manner that would be considered personal information.

§ 83. Sharing and selling of personal information prohibited. 1. No government entity or contractor shall share any individual's personal information with a contractor or subcontractor unless such information is crucial to the purpose for which such government entity or contractor has contracted such contractor or subcontractor's services.

2. No government entity or contractor shall share any individual's personal information with another government entity or contractor unless such information is crucial to the performance of such other government entity or contractor's duties, and such other government entity or contractor cannot procure such personal information on its own without serious hardship.

3. No government entity or contractor shall sell personal information about an individual.

(c) comply with a request made under the freedom of information law; or

(d) exercise or defend legal claims.

2. This article shall not apply to the sale of personal information to or from a consumer reporting agency if such information is to be reported in, or used to generate, a consumer report as defined by the federal fair credit reporting act (15 USC 1681), and use of that information is limited by such act.

3. A government entity that discloses personal information to a contractor shall not be liable under this article if such contractor uses such personal information in violation of the restrictions set forth in this article, provided that, at the time of disclosing such personal information, such government entity does not have actual knowledge or reason to believe that such contractor intends to commit such a violation. No contractor shall be liable under this article for the obligations of a government entity for which it provides services as set forth in this article.

4. This article shall not be construed to require a government entity to reidentify or otherwise link information that is not maintained in a manner that would be considered personal information.
