AN ACT to amend the education law, in relation to requiring the administration of the TASC examination in the Chinese and Korean languages for pupils who are proficient in such languages and of limited English proficiency

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The education law is amended by adding a new section 3204-a to read as follows:

§ 3204-a. Administration of the TASC examination in the Chinese and Korean languages. 1. Students who are proficient in the Chinese or Korean language and of limited English proficiency shall be entitled to receive instruction in preparation for the TASC examination and the administration of such examination in the Chinese or Korean language.

2. The commissioner shall require each board of education, including the board of each community school district of the city of New York, make available to all pupils proficient in the Chinese or Korean language, and of limited proficiency in English, the official TASC examination written in such native language, and make available any instructional courses or programs for the preparation of such examination, which are offered by the school district, including course materials, in such native language. The commissioner shall further direct that any notification or correspondence relating to the administration of the TASC examination shall be written in the Chinese or Korean language.

3. Each school district shall obtain and maintain a record of pupils who have the TASC examination administered in the Chinese or Korean language and shall report such information to the department on an annual basis.

EXPLANATION--Matter in italics (underscored) is new; matter in brackets [-] is old law to be omitted.
