§ 42. Supervision of money paid into court. The comptroller shall have power, at any time, to examine the books, papers, records and accounts of any public office or officer of the state, or of any subdivision of the state in anywise relating to moneys or securities paid into court or ordered by any court of record or required by statute to be so paid.