§ 239-s. New York city commission on human rights. Nothing in this article shall be deemed to limit or reduce the powers of the New York city commission on human rights, and with respect to such powers, the jurisdiction of the New York city commission on human rights in relation to matters within the city of New York shall be deemed to be concurrent with the jurisdiction of the New York state division of human rights.