§ 2205. Prohibitions. (a) It shall be unlawful for any officer or employee of a licensed insurer or of a savings bank, other than a duly licensed agent, as a part of his duties, to negotiate for applications or orders for life insurance or annuity contracts or to solicit or procure from the public such applications or orders in any office of any insurer or of any savings bank, without being certified pursuant to this article.

(b) It shall be unlawful for any insurer or any savings bank to employ any uncertified person, as a part of his duties, to negotiate for applications or orders for life insurance or annuity contracts or to solicit or procure from the public such applications or orders in any office of the insurer or bank.
