§ 19.26 Limitations on actions against the office. Notwithstanding the provisions of the civil practice law and rules or any other law, except for laws governing actions to recover stolen property:

1. No action against the office for damages arising out of injury to or loss of property loaned to the office shall be commenced more than three years from the date the office gives the lender or claimant notice of the injury or loss under section 19.22 of this article.

2. No action against the office to recover property shall be commenced more than three years from the date the office gives notice of its intent to terminate the loan under section 19.17 of this article or notice of intent to acquire title to undocumented property under section 19.18 of this article.
