§ 378. Supplemental retirement allowance. a. A supplemental retirement allowance shall be paid to pensioners of the retirement system who have retired prior to the calendar year nineteen hundred ninety-four. Such supplemental retirement allowance shall be payable on the basis provided for herein, commencing with a payment for the month of September, nineteen hundred ninety-nine and continuing through the month of August, two thousand. Said supplemental retirement allowance shall be a percentage of the retirement allowance otherwise payable, computed without optional modification. Said percentage, for each calendar year of retirement, is set forth in subdivision b of this section. Said supplemental retirement allowance shall be computed on the basis of the first fourteen thousand dollars of such annual retirement allowance and shall be payable commencing September first, nineteen hundred ninety-nine to all disability pensioners, and to other pensioners who have attained age sixty-two or who have been retired for ten years or more and have attained age fifty-five.

c. The supplemental retirement allowance shall be rounded off to the nearest dollar.

d. The benefits hereinabove provided for shall be in lieu of the benefits presently provided by articles four and six of this chapter unless such benefits are in excess of those provided by this section, in which latter case such benefits shall be paid by the retirement system pursuant to this section.

e. Contributions shall be made to the pension accumulation fund by, or on account of, the state and each participating employer at a rate fixed by the actuary, which shall be computed to be sufficient to provide the benefits established by this section.

f. The supplemental retirement allowance authorized by this section shall also be paid in the same manner set forth above to a police officer and firefighter sixty-two years of age or older who is retired, or any person retired for disability regardless of age, or any spouse qualifying pursuant to subdivision h of this section, and who receives, as a result, a retirement allowance or pension from any state administered and operated retirement or pension plan or system, not including, however, the New York state teachers retirement system.

g. The cost of providing supplemental retirement allowance payments pursuant to subdivision f of this section shall be paid from the supplemental pension fund, and the comptroller shall include with his budget estimate furnished to the governor for each fiscal year, amounts estimated by him to be sufficient to reimburse the supplemental pension fund for such payments. No monies belonging to any publicly administered and operated retirement or pension system or plan shall be appropriated or used for any purpose or for any payment authorized or required by subdivision f of this section.

h. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, (i) the spouse of a deceased pensioner, who had elected one of the options pursuant to this chapter which provides that benefits are to be continued for the life of such spouse after the death of the pensioner, or (ii) the spouse of a deceased pensioner who had provided pursuant to a closed local pension plan which was subsequently assumed by the state, that benefits are to be continued for the life of such spouse after the death of the pensioner, shall be entitled to receive a monthly supplemental retirement allowance pursuant to this subdivision. Said monthly supplemental retirement allowance shall be equal in amount to one-half of the monthly supplemental retirement allowance which the pensioner would be receiving if living and shall commence upon the death of the pensioner.
