§ 37. Saving clause. The adoption of this article shall not be construed to cede to the United States any territory or jurisdiction over any territory not so ceded by the laws repealed by the consolidation of the general laws of the state of which this article is a part, or to change the terms or conditions upon which such cessions were originally made.