§ 1701. Appeals; to what court.

Appeals in civil causes shall be taken to the county court, unless an appellate term of the supreme court has been established by the appellate division of the department and such appellate division has directed that such appeals be taken to such term, in which case the appeal shall be taken to the appellate term.